AMUSEMENT

A GREAT MINSTREL SHOW

Beach & Bowers' minstrels struck a popular chord at the Lyceum last evening. The troupe was greeted by a crowded house and gave the audience just what it was looking for, a bright, clean minstrel show, with first class music, and some unusually good specialties. The program was not exactly the stereotyped minstrel show program thruout, but the features that tend to give minstrel shows their undying popularity were preserved and others added. The orchestra was one of the strongest musical organizations that has visited the city during the winter and the vocal numbers were exceptionally good. Jokes were not as numerous as in some shows, nor were they as old. The contortionist was a wonder, and the trick bicyclist discounts the best of circus performers.

Beach and Bowers' will probably visit this city later in the season and they can rest assured of another good house.—Fergus Falls (Minnesota) Journal.

"PECK'S BAD BOY"

The Richest Mine of Natural Farce Comedy.

It is not only an inspiration of humorous genius which impelled ex-Governor Geo. W. Peck to write the "Bad Boy" biography but in that triumph of laughable literature he furnished the richest mine of farce comedy for the playwright to draw from. Twenty years ago a wife awake manager appreciating this fact, secured the exclusive rights to dramatize and produce "Peck's Bad Boy" which is the screamer with important additions, to be presented at Steward's Opera House on Thursday Nov. 8.

This play is not only a mirthful masterpiece whose success has been at once extraordinary and perennial, but the only genuine one of its kind; its many imitators' being comparatively undeserving of consideration. Moreover the human nature with which it so brightly and mirthfully overflows, appeals irresistibly to the most emphatic appreciation and the risibles of people of every condition and age, so much so that the shrill laughter of Young America is mingled with the deep guffaws of Uncle Sam's gray-haired sons.

A CAPABLE CAST

"A capable cast, a play well staged and a pleased audience"—What sums up the performance of "The Convict's Daughter," which was presented at the Columbia theatre yesterday. With one exception, that of the thrilling escape from Sing Sing, sensational features are almost entirely lacking, but the play abounds in heart interest.

George J. Elmore as "Weary Willie" easily holds first place. He is the center of attraction when on the stage and his rendition of a difficult part deserves the applause that greeted him. Wilbur Christy in the heavy role also does good work. His acting is consistent and is one of the pleasing features of the performance.

Thomas Richardsen as Colonel Gould is a dignified southern gentleman of the old school, who handles his part in a way to win approval. Miss Evelyn Nicholson in the title role is called upon to do a great deal of strong emotional work, and is not found wanting. The balance of the cast is capable and the play an enjoyable one.—Spokane Chronicle
