OREGON

It has always been the happy fortune of the United States to have a border population that was constantly uneasy to reach a farther front: wilder land and a freer life. Civilization crossed the continent at a rapid pace, and Oregon was conquered in about forty years. In all the vast campaign from east to west here is the most signal victory, the swiftest, the most complete, the most brilliant achievement. The saving of Oregon to the United States is an exceedingly painful record in human annals. Among the chapters of human tragedies, this is one of the most tragic. For the United States and Great Britain to write and sign the article that gave us Oregon, required fifty-four years, two months and six days. No two policies come more in contradiction, one fostering all tastes and habits of the natives, and the other demanding a total change in the modes and grades of life. One policy was to propagate wilderness and beaver, and Indians and half-breeds to catch them; the other civilization is in its highest type and thrift. On the one hand, it was beaver and Indians and wilderness for a huge corporation, and so many pounds sterling dividends; on the other it was settlement, domestic animals, civilization and national wealth.

The English had their own way from 1670, when the fur company was chartered, till 1854, when they met our missionaries in the valley of the Columbia. This region, the original Oregon of the treaty of 1846, is larger than three New England, and in most respects for human homes and national wealth, it is naturally superior to New England. There is scarcely a grain, fruit, vegetable, grass, tree, plant, or flower that grows in the United States or in Europe, but some portion of the soil of Oregon will raise to perfection with fair cultivation.

A Chicago judge sentenced a man to jail for allowing his wife to support him. What will the country do for jails, if this thing spread?

The live advertiser is the live salesman. The man who buys a stock of goods and disposes of it in the shortest time is enabled to "turn his money over" and use it again to great advantage. The greater the number of people who read of a given place of business the greater the number who visit that place. Advertising brings customers as the sun brings light. The

In the early days the settlers in the west encouraged and hailed the emigrant because of the fact that he made one more consumer for the products of the soil, for which there was but a very limited local market. In contrast with that condition of affairs we find Oregon today hailing and encouraging emigration upon very different grounds. More laborers are required that the soil may yield its full harvest and that the demands of far away markets may be supplied. It has been brot about by the transportation of facilities which have entirely removed the necessity of depending upon local markets by making accessible to the farmers of Oregon, the markets in every country on the globe.

The Pullman sleeping car octopus is shown to have a surplus of $29,000,000 in its treasury, squeezed out of the traveling public. This does not include the holdups of the porters, either.

After this the American girl who marries a title must understand right at the start that it will be useless for her to expect any sympathy.

FOR SALE—Five room house and one lot, on Third Street, Grandy's Addition. A good barn. A bargain for the one who acts first. Inquire of H. P. Lewis at corner 3rd and D Streets, or of Lewis Bros.
