BLOOD POISON CURE YOURSELF AT HOME

Most persons who are afflicted with Contagious Blood Poison hesitate to go to a physician for several reasons. In the first place the expense is heavy, and they know that the inevitable treatment will be mercury and arsenic, strong minerals that act with disastrous effects on the delicate parts of the system, and which do not, after all, really cure the disease. What they want is a safe, reliable treatment that can be taken at home and a permanent cure made of this loathsome disorder without unnecessary exposure or expense. Such a remedy is S. S. S.—it is the only medicine that goes down to the very bottom of the trouble and drives out the last trace of the poison that there are necessary signs of its return. It does not contain a particle of mercury in any form, and after removing the disease from the circulation builds up every part of the system by its fine vegetable tonic properties.

S. S. S. attacks the trouble at its head and not only permanently cures the disease for the one afflicted, but so purifies the blood that future offspring is insured against infection. S. S. S. may be taken in the privacy of your home and a perfect cure made of this hateful and loathsome trouble. For the assistance of those who are curing themselves with S. S. S. we have prepared a special book on Contagious Blood Poison which contains instructions of great value to all blood poison sufferers. We will be glad to send a copy of this book free, and if additional instructions or advice are wanted, our physicians will furnish it without charge.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

WILL BE A DEMAND NEXT YEAR

A. E. Huff, a beet grower of this valley this morning exhibited sugar beets in this city that have been pulled since the frost and remarkably enough they are sound. This means that even the last heavy frost did not entirely damage the unpulled beets. It has been estimated that there are one thousand tons of beets still in the ground and the loss was not to be heavy. However, it is encouraging to know that with a little more pleasant weather, there will be a general clean up of beets.

OSTEOPATHY AND ANATOMY

The Osteopath is obliged to be a good anatomist. He cannot practice Osteopathy at all unless he is. He is the fellow, who, when a patient presents himself, goes to work to find out exactly what the trouble is. He looks upon a man as an anatomical structure consisting of a framework of bones, a network of nerves, a tangle of muscles, a web of lymphatic ducts, a complication of ligaments, blood vessels and viscera. To untangle and locate all the multifarious organs and tissues is his business.

He goes to work to heal the sick man much the same as an engineer would fix his locomotive. He finds a nerve crossed or stretched. He finds the muscles tense or strained. He finds bones dislocated, or partly dislocated. He finds cartilages misplaced. He finds a thousand that an average physician would never discover, never dream of. Hence it is that the Osteopath must necessarily be a good anatomist.

As a rule, these doctors carry the study of anatomy much further than the allopath, the electric or the homopath. Even the most experienced surgeon knows nothing of anatomy in comparison with the educated Osteopath.—Medical Talk.
