THE FIRST OF ITS KIND.

The Newlin Drug Company, ever alert to the best interests of its patrons, and realizing the imperative need of a public telephone station where shoppers can reach a telephone for the local exchange without cost, have at a considerable expense installed a public telephone at their store. This telephone is for the use of the public and anyone wishing to use this phone is at liberty to do so without charge. The public is invited to use this phone at any time. Another feature which this enterprising firm has inaugurated, is a stamp department where persons wishing stamps in any quantity or any denomination can find them at no additional cost over the government price. When down town call at the Newlin Drug Company's store and see the splendid holiday display.

The large delegation of young men and women who are attending various schools of learning in the Northwest, from this county will begin to arrive home today for the coming holiday vacation. There are nearly two dozen of La Grande people in the various schools this year.

MARRIED

REHER--HOLMES—At 8:50 last evening December 20, in the home of Grandmother Reher, the groom's mother, on Adams Avenue, Mr. A. J. Reher and Mrs. Eva Holmes were united in marriage, pastor W. H. Gibson of the Baptist church officiating.

A goodly number of chosen friends witnessed the ceremony. Mr. L. S. Pollock acted as the groom's best man and Miss Matilda B. Henning as the bride's maid. When the happy young couple were pronounced husband and wife the company sat down to a sumptuous feast and all rejoiced together.

Mr. and Mrs. Reher were the recipients of many beautiful and useful presents from those present and from absent friends. They will be at home to their many friends and well wishers in the Reher residence on corner Adams Ave. and Greenwood St.

A NEW DEPARTURE

In order to meet the continually increasing demand for my tamales, I have made special arrangements whereby I am now in position to furnish hot chicken tamales in quantities to parties upon short notice. In order that the tamales may retain a hot juicy flavor, all party orders will be delivered in one of my new copper patent steamers, thus enabling the hostess to serve them "Hot" and "Fresh."

A trial order will convince you that my tamales, "are the proper thing." All orders delivered promptly, and at the exact hour desired. Let me fill your Xmas candy order. Parlors open after all shows.

A LITTLE BIT OF HISTORY

HOW OSTEOPATHY RECEIVED ITS FIRST LEGISLATIVE RECOGNITION AND WHAT THE RECORD OF ITS SUCCESS HAS SINCE BEEN BEFORE LEGISLATIVE BODIES

To those who are not familiar with Osteopathy's early beginnings, with its first assaults upon the almost impregnable fortress of prejudice, some account of its first legislative battle may be of interest. This battle, not unaturally, occurred in Missouri, where the science had its birthplace.

A bill legalizing Osteopathy was introduced in the Missouri legislature in 1895. It was passed by both houses but was vetoed by Governor Stone. As no valid reason for the veto was cited, it was generally understood that Governor Stone's action was in deference to the wishes of the medical associations, which had not come to understand the true worth of the new system and were naturally loath to permit the entry of a rival into the field of healing.

The matter then went before the people. The great good work accomplished by Dr. Still and his followers had become very generally known throughout the state and there was a strong public demand for fair play to the Osteopath. The result was that the new legislature, in both houses, passed the Osteopathic bill by overwhelming majorities. The vote in the Assembly was 101 in favor of the bill and 16 against; while in the Senate the vote stood 26 for and 3 against. Six of the legislators who voted against the bill were medical practitioners.

MISSOURI AND VERMONT LED

Governor Stephens, who had himself experienced the benefits of Osteopathic treatment, at once signed the bill.

He was promptly criticized by the medical associations for doing so; but in reply stated that the people of Osteopathy's state were evidently in favor of the bill and that, had he withheld his approval, it would evidently have been passed over his veto. The present Missouri Osteopathic law, framed on much broader lines, was passed by the legislature in 1903.

While the first Missouri bill was pending, Osteopathy was legalized in Vermont, where it had come into great favor thru cures accomplished in the families of many of the most prominent men of the state. The cause of Osteopathy was championed by Ex-Governor Dillingham, Lieutenant Governor Fisk, and many other state leaders; and was passed in November, 1896, and at once signed by Governor Groot.

Michigan came third, only one member of the Legislature voting against proper recognition of Osteopathy; and Governor Pingree approved the bill April 21, 1897.

North Dakota, Iowa, South Dakota, Illinois, Tennessee, Montana, Kansas and California fell into line in rapid succession with legislative recognition of the science; Indiana added an Osteopath to its State Board of Examiners by special act of the legislature.

STATUS IN OTHER STATES

Nebraska, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Ohio, Minnesota, New Mexico, Colorado, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Kentucky are some of the other states which have now definitely recognized Osteopathy by legislative enactment.

In still other states, which have no definite Osteopathic law, Osteopathic practice has been protected by amendments to the laws regulating the practice of medicine; while in still others it has secured such favorable verdicts from the highest courts that special laws have become less needful.

In Pennsylvania a bill was passed by the Senate, 36 to 1, and by the Assembly, 106 to 50. Quite a number of the Osteopaths themselves were unfavorable to this bill and it was vetoed by Governor Pennypacker.

In several other Eastern states, notably New York and New Jersey, strong movements for Osteopathic recognition have failed by narrow margins or because of special circumstances. In several instances a single committee member has succeeded in preventing an Osteopathic bill from being reported to a legislature known to be favorable to it. In all of these states the early passage of Osteopathic laws is now assured.

MERIT MADE PROGRESS POSSIBLE

The facts cited, however, indicate that this new science of healing has made tremendous strides, that it has secured, in about two-thirds of the states of the Union, legislative recognition that would surely have been denied had the cause not been one of real merit. Legislatures and governors are not likely to endorse a system of healing which has not been fully demonstrated as effective—particularly in the fact of the determined opposition of other schools of practice that have been longer established; and the wondrous progress made by Osteopathy before legislative bodies could never have been achieved without the solid backing in each instance of hundreds who had been cured of their ills through the treatment.
