TOBACCO TO KILL WEEVIL

(Scripps News Association)
Batesville, Ark., Dec. 21.—Mr. Arthur Herbert, an English scientist, who has been investigating the ravages of the boll weevil in Southern cotton fields announced that he has discovered a simple remedy to destroy the pest. His plan simply is to grow tobacco plants among the cotton and he now states that after three years investigation he has found that the weevil will not live in the vicinity of tobacco. All growers can utilize this discovery without expense and with no additional labor than is required to produce the cotton.
