COAL FAMINE AGAIN FELT

There is still a lack of coal in La Grande. The promised shipments have been slow in coming. The extra status of the famine was accentuated this morning when a stranger, who has lately moved his family to this city, stated that he had now found a dwelling in which to live, but was unable to purchase coal or wood. Consequently the coal spell has caught him in dire circumstances. The car shortage is a plausible tale for the railroad company to relate, but it does not relieve wants of citizens who have not ordered fuel early, let alone strangers who come to the city with the intention of making La Grande their home, and then find that the railroad company's service is inadequate to supply the needed fuel by which the stranger can cook his food and warm his body.

The committee appointed by the Commercial Club was instrumental in getting several shipments to this city, and it again appears that La Grande's only salvation is a considerable enlargement of the committee's appeal for aid.

A NEW GAME LAW

Atty. J. W. Knowles is preparing an amendment to the present game law, which is to apply only to Union county, to extend the open season on deer fifteen days. The present law fixes the date at November 1. The proposed amendment will make it November 15. The judge states that the open season is in the midst of harvest and the farmers cannot take advantage of the opportunity and he also remarked that court is always in session that month and the lawyers could not get away. He did not seem so solicitous in regard to the lawyers but he thought the present law worked a great disadvantage to the farmers of this county, and with this philanthropic desire he is preparing the amendment.
