SCHEURER'S STORE IS DAMAGED BY EXPLOSION

The Scheurer tobacco and hot drinks store narrowly escaped destruction this morning as a result of the explosion of the coffee and milk heating apparatus. Charles Scheurer had been filling the apparatus with gasoline and still held in his hand a bottle of the explosive, when for some reason the oil in the tank touched a flame. Instantly the flames flew ceilingward. Mr. Scheurer, by the miraculous assistance of providence, reached a place of safety with but slight burns, and a free hair singe. But the flames grew in proportions and soon the store was filled with gases, and the highly polished counter on which the apparatus stands, ignited. The proprietor and Mrs. Scheurer, who were in an adjoining room appeared on the scene but before they could again reach an exit they were in danger of asphyxiation. Luckily the amount of gasoline in the tank was not great and it was but a short time until the oil was consumed. When the flames had burned themselves out, the store was more or less black with smoke, and the counter is ruined. The ceiling directly above the tank is seared. Including the destruction of the heating apparatus and damage to the expensive counter, the loss will reach close to four hundred dollars. The proprietor carries insurance. The fire department was called out but the flames had died out before the department reached the scene, the entire incident lasting but a few minutes.

IDLE RUMORS

When all other systems except Osteopathy have failed to effect a cure it is only reasonable and right that the Osteopath should have a chance. It seems that some who do not want him to have that chance take pleasure in cultivating this idea that the treatment is indelicate. Another common report is that our treatment is "rough"—"too severe" for invalids etc. Both stories are groundless. Do not be imposed on by idle rumor that has no basis whatsoever in fact.—Osteopathic Health.
