ANENT THE SPRINGTIME

Now, doth the busy city man
Improve each shining hour,
By spading up his back dog yard
With all his might and power.
PETER QUINCE.

The enlargement of the brickyard means a much larger payroll this year.

Atlanta is thinking seriously of endeavoring to secure the next Democratic national convention.

The Recorder is having the official ballots printed. City election will soon be here.

After March 5th there will be two graduates of West Point in the Senate, Mr. Du Pont, of Delaware and Mr. Briggs, of New Jersey.

It has been stated that payrolls make cities. If this is true La Grande will make a city. There is not another town in Oregon today with larger payrolls than La Grande.

There were some who thought the railroad would ruin this country. There are some who think a rock crusher and road roller will ruin the county. Some people always live in the past.

It begins to look as though Philander C. Knox, formerly attorney general of the United States senator may be brought forward by Keystone State Republicans for the presidential nomination.

Owing to the great mortality among infants the city council of New York has passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of milk unless it has been pasteurized or sterilized. Wonder if the Syrup of Figs Company has a friend in that city council.

Apparently very little interest is being taken in the proposition to bond the city for 160,000 dollars. This is a large amount of money and usually such a proposition would meet with opposition. If there is any it is being kept mighty quiet.

There are so many demands upon the state as upon individuals. The appropriations of the legislature were 3,500,000 dollars and not one cent of the vast amount to maintain an exhibit at the Jamestown exposition. There will be millions of people attending this fair and Oregon should have been in evidence. It is not too late if action is taken immediately. An exhibition similar to the one the National Cash Register people of Dayton Ohio had at the Lewis & Clark fair, with pictures, could be maintained for about 6,000 dollars and a constant exhibition of the scenery and industries of Oregon would possibly be as effective as if we would have expended several times this amount in an attempt at an exhibit. It is not too late, who will pass the hat.

FUTURE POPULATIONS

To a population of about eighty-five million we shall add during the next ten years twenty million or over, giving us in 1916 a total of about one hundred five million and by 1926, or twenty years hence, one hundred thirty million. In 1931, or twenty-five years from now, our population will be about one hundred forty-five million. By 1936, or thirty years hence, we will have in the United States, not counting our insular possessions, about one hundred fifty-five million people, or double our total population of nineteen hundred. Looking forward forty-four years to the middle of this century, and the boys and younger men of today will be active business men of that period, we must count upon a population of two hundred million. As business grows so much more rapidly than population, as the output of nearly all manufactured and agricultural products increases at an ever-accelerating rate, and as modern machinery and inventions make possible the doubling and quadrupling of man's working capacity, it is not unreasonable to say that the two hundred million people of nineteen hundred fifty should exceed in potentiality what four hundred million could accomplish today. Have we room for such a population without over-crowding? Can we accommodate these vast numbers and still find ample land for the farmer and natural resources sufficient for the worker in iron steel and cotton and other industries? The briefest study on this point will turn the most confirmed pessimist into an optimist.

BROKEN JEWELS

Your watch may run if a jewel is cracked or broken and it may keep fairip good time.

The pivot revolving in such a jewel, however, soon cuts and frequently breaks, thus increasing the damage and cost of repairing.

If your watch is varying, it will pay you to have it examined.

All repairs given my personal attention.
