

THEATRICAL ATTRACTIONS

EVERYBODY PLEASED.

"Devil's Auction" Provided Fun for All.

The "Devil's Auction" will be remembered by those who were at the Steward opera house last evening. It is true that many who attended were somewhat surprised, as it was evident that a considerable portion of the audience expected to see a slightly more "leggy" exhibition, but in this they were certainly disappointed. The exhibition of personal charms was sufficient to please most any one, but the entertainment was not confined to that particular line by any means. There was plenty of good, snappy franchise, which is palpably a big steal. The young man, however, will not sign the bill granting the franchise and all sorts of influences are brought to bear upon him. He is threatened with the loss of the girl he loves, with begging the young woman and her brother, and even of having his dead father's name besmirched, but he remains steadfast to the end and the result is that he comes out victor at last.

"Arizona" Coming.
Hollis E. Cooley will again present "Arizona," America's greatest play, at the Steward Thursday, January 23. The theatergoing public seems never to tire of this charming comedy drama and hail each succeeding visiting with delight. We have gone over the story of Mr. Thomas' play time and again and it is not our intention to burden our readers by reiterating the many praises which critics and the public have written and said about it; suffice to say that the coming presentation will be as grand and as perfect as to detail as on any of its former visits here.

Eleven O'clock Eggs.
Tacoma has a hen that doesn't belong to the union, though her owner is a union man from the ground up. She belongs to Medrie J. La Vergne, and she works overtime, laying an egg every night at 11 o'clock. Redget is a little white hen, and she works industriously all day long gathering food and scratching up the yard. At night she turns in as early as the other hens. Promptly at 11 o'clock she cracks out the news that she has completed her day's labor and is ready to go to sleep, and Mr. La Vergne, who has investigated the cackling several nights in succession, has never failed to find an egg.

CIRCULATING FISH PETITION.

seen in this city, and the dancing was equally as good. The only weak feature of the entertainment was the singing, which was rather light, but there were enough good features to offset this discrepancy. A page could be written relative to the good things, but it is sufficient to say that those who were there received full value for their money, and those who were not there missed a good thing.

Story of the Play.
George Broadhurst's political drama "The Man of the Hour," which William A. Brady and Joseph R. Grismer will offer to the Steward theatergoers January 21, is so thoroughly vigorous, sturdy and put upon the crying political and social needs of the day and so fearlessly written. The play deals of love and of politics, with, it is said, politics predominating. It has to do with a man placed in office who is fighting to do what he sees to be his duty even when his course means the loss of all he prizes most in life—even the loss of the woman he loves.

The story in brief concerns a young man who is elected mayor of a city by a political boss and a traction exploiter. When he is put in, the men who nominated him think they can use him in furthering a big street car

THAT PICNIC HAMPER

Should always contain a bottle or two of our pure and sparkling BEER
No matter what your "solids" are, you'll be right in the liquid part of your refreshment if our Beer nestles in your basket when you start out. There will be no fear of its "going flat." It won't get a chance after you have sampled its exquisite flavor. Try a sample box even before your picnic, then you'll know the right kind to take.
