

BETTER PAPER FOR LESS

Rightly or wrongly we unconsciously judge people by appearances, and that is one reason why you should use good paper for correspondence. Good taste in the matter of stationery is indicative of refinement, and you cannot choose amiss when you buy here. It's not necessary either to pay the high prices commonly asked. We have a nice line of box papers at 10 to 60c per box. A good quality by the pound--an economical way to buy--25 cents. Ruled or plain linen papers 15 cents per quire. We have a very attractive line of tablet papers from 5 cents up to 35 cents, the latter a tablet of fine correspondence paper with envelopes to match. Always glad to show these things.

DR. BARNES INJURED

About to end a trip made in quest of better health, Dr. E. W. Barnes, an aged practitioner and one of the pioneer physicians of the northwest, fell on the lower deck of the steamer Alliance last evening and sustained a severe but not dangerous injury to his head, which necessitates his staying indoors at the Portland under the care of his daughter, who has been a guest of the hostelry for the last two months. Dr. Hollister attended his fellow physician, and it is expected Dr. Barnes will be entirely well within a few days.

Living at North Powder, Ore., Dr. Barnes became ill several weeks ago and traveled principally by steamer for improvement. He took passage on the Alliance for Portland to visit his daughter, at the Portland hotel, and as the steamer entered the Willamette he tripped on a pump handle in a passageway and fell, cutting a gash in his forehead.

Miss A. Barnes, his daughter, is representative of a large fur establishment in the east, and is caring for her injured father at the Portland, where she is located for her employers.—Portland Telegram.

OIL CLAIM MEN TO MEET

La Grande business men and citizens who hold claims in the oil district of Vale, are called to meet in this city tomorrow afternoon at 2:30. The meeting will be held in the Elks' hall. Business to come up will principally be of an organization nature. Local claim holders have long since discussed the possibility and practicality of forming a company and developing the project as a company. This move will be discussed at the Sunday afternoon meeting. All claim holders are requested to be present at this meeting.

CURRENT TOPIC CLUB MEETING

The Current Topic club was entertained last evening at the home of William Miller, who led the meeting. The subject for discussion was aerial navigation, wireless telegraphy and telephony. After a few introductory remarks in which Mr. Miller called attention to the wonderful discoveries and scientific accomplishments of the past few years along lines electrical. He then left the subject to his assistants. The first to respond was R. E. Smith, who read a most interesting paper treating upon wireless telegraphy. He was followed by Mrs. Osburn, who had prepared a specially strong paper upon aerial navigation. Next came George Cleaver, who read a story which he claimed had been written by his wife. The story was made to appear local by the introduction of local names and was listened to with interest. Rev. Deal then followed with a most eloquent five-minute address in which he brought out some very salient features of the subject. Rev. Seemann then delivered a short address, in which he recited many facts which were pleasing as well as instructive, and also interspersed through his remarks some poetry which he recited in his usual masterly manner.

Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Kirk and her daughter, Miss Margaret. During the lunch hour Robert Miller manipulated the graphophone much to the delight and entertainment of all present.

Priesthood Meeting.
The quarterly meeting of the I. D. S. priesthood was held this afternoon at the tabernacle. Prominent members of the church throughout the county were present, and the affairs of the church were generally discussed.

MAIL SACK IS ROBBED

Last week the North Powder News announced the finding of a United States mail pouch, cut open and lying by the road across the river, the bringing of it in and identifying it as one sent out from the North Powder postoffice.

In an interview with the O. R. & N. agent at North Powder, Mr. Butner states that the sack was put aboard the train all right, but the mail clerk finding it was a sack intended for the next train instead of his, threw it off.

This was a queer proceeding, to say the least. The train had left the town and was out in the sagebrush, by the water tank across the river. Why should he throw the sack off the train instead of following the usual course in such cases, carrying it on and giving it to the proper authority? The matter should be investigated and somebody taught a lesson.

The clerk, Mr. Butner says, claims that he telegraphed back from the next station, Baker, telling the whereabouts of the pouch. But if he did so, there was no one in the office; such a message was never received. The agent's theory is that someone found the sack lying out there by the tank and robbed it. Not less than three registered letters are known to have been in it.
