

BETTER PAPER FOR LESS

Rightly or wrongly we unconsciously judge people by appearances, and that is one reason why you should use good paper for correspondence. Good taste in the matter of stationery is indicative of refinement, and you cannot choose amiss when you buy here. It's not necessary either to pay the high prices commonly asked. We have a nice line of box papers at 10 to 60c per box. A good quality by the pound—an economical way to buy—25 cents. Ruled or plain linen papers 15 cents per quire. We have a very attractive line of tablet papers from 5 cents up to 35 cents, the latter a tablet of fine correspondence paper with envelopes to match. Always glad to show these things.

The most important of these are the limitation of the amount of rate of levies for taxation, to prescribe the duties of county officers and regulate their fees and commissions, to provide for the supervision of public offices and institutions and to establish a uniform system of public accounting and auditing. The governor also recommends a more effectual law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday and providing for a thorough enforcement of the license law. An act providing for the examination and supervision of all trust, guaranty, surety and bonding companies will also be considered. The matter of the representation of West Virginia at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition will also be taken up. A law requiring mining companies to make more thorough provision for the safety of the miners, with the view of preventing the repetition of such terrible mine disasters as have recently occurred in this state, may be considered by the legislature.

BACK FROM TRIP EAST

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Wade, who for the past 60 days have been visiting friends and relatives in southeastern Kansas, have returned home better pleased with La Grande and the Grande Ronde valley than ever. While absent Mr. Wade made a careful study of the conditions now obtaining in southeastern Kansas, and says that he finds conditions there do not compare favorably with this valley. The farmers do not receive as good prices for their products, and the market is not so reliable.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade was accompanied home by Mr. Wade's nephew, E. H. Moore, who expects to purchase a farm and locate here. The following market quotations will give our readers some idea of the prices the Kansas farmers receive for their products. The list was taken from a local paper, which was printed last week, and tells the story of why Mr. Moore decided to look for a western farm:

Produce Market—Springe, over 2 lbs. 4c; hens, per lb. 5c; butter, per lb. 29c; eggs, per doz. 17c; turkeys, per lb. 5c; ducks, per lb. 5c; geese, ff, per lb. 5c; old roosters, 10c; young chicks, 2 lbs and under, 5c; old Tom turkeys, 7c.

GIRL OF FIVE YEARS ALMOST FATAALLY BURNED

Kamela, Jan. 28.—(Special.)—Horrible sufferings were endured by the 5-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emmet McCoy of Kamela this morning, and Mrs. McCoy was severely burned about the arms, because the little girl had been in too close contact with a stove.

The girl had made an early morning call at the home of a neighbor, but a short distance from the McCoy home, and in her conversation forgot the stove near which she was standing, until her clothing had been ignited. The small blaze frightened her into action, and with a scream, child-like, she sprang to the door before her hostess could intercept her, planning to reach her mother's side.

The action is responsible for the severity of the burns. Instantly, on gaining the open, the wind fanned the burning clothing into a flame of tongues, each licking and scorching the body of the little one. Her wild run to the home and mother was brief, but burns that may prove fatal were the result.

To save her child, the mother heroically sustained frightful burns on her arms, but they are not fatal. She seized the panic-stricken and suffering child in her arms and instantly dashed her into a tub of water.

The child is burned about the body principally. Dr. Biggers was called from La Grande to treat the burns.

While Mrs. McCoy is suffering much from the wounds inflicted on her arms, she is not in the precarious condition which surrounds the little girl's life. There is hope for ultimate recovery.

Hanna will again call the interested parties together.

New York, Jan. 28.—New York has often heard of the "soul kiss," the esculatory flower of the spiritual affinity, and tonight it will have an opportunity to witness the real article. The spooky caress is the feature of Florenz Ziegfeld's production of "The Soul Kiss," which will have its premiere at the New York theater this evening. Mile. Adeline Genee, the European danseuse, is the bright particular star of the production. She is a Danish woman and this is her first visit to America.
