Eberhart Heads Company.
The Columbia Bridge company, successors to P. E. Easterday & Co., formerly of Fairbury, Neb., have transferred their headquarters to this city and will shortly begin the erection of a warehouse and workshop on ground just leased from the O. R. & N., near the new cannery, says the Walla Walla Bulletin. They have offices now in the Jaycox building, and as fast as their business will justify, purpose adding to their plant and enlarging the same. Most of their repair work will be done in their own shops this season and eventually they will manufacture practically all of the products for their various contracts here.

The Columbia Bridge company is under the management of A. E. Eberhart and C. W. Smith. Mr. Eberhart is one of the best known engineers in the country and for several years was connected with the American Bridge company, as was also Mr. Smith, who has been associated for many years with some of the big enterprises of the east. They expect to do a general line of engineering work, building steel, wood and combination bridges, structural steel work and foundation work.

They expect to devote particular attention to bridge work and structural steel work, and already have a number of contracts under way in this state and Oregon.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR

Be Sure You Get Foley's

A Mother Testifies
This is to certify that my daughter was down for almost one year with a cold. The doctors finally pronounced it consumption. We had given up hope for her recovery. I was given a sample bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. I gave it all to her in about three hours. It stopped the cough, and gave her rest. I sent next day and bought a 50c. bottle and began giving it. In three month's time she was well. There can not be too much said in favor of Foley's Honey and Tar. It saved my child's life.
