WHAT CLOSING OF THE SALOONS DID TO KANSAS

Hon. C. W. Trickett, assistant attorney general of Kansas, has recently made the following statement with regard to the closing of saloons in Kansas City and the effect thereof, and refutes the statement sent out by the Model License league:

This city is the metropolis of Kansas, with a population of about 100,000. The inhabitants are largely wage-earners and represent every nationality. We are located on the border, only an invisible line separating us from Kansas City, Mo. The city ranks fifth in the manufacturing cities in the United States.

One year ago there were 256 saloons in the county, 200 gambling dens and about 60 houses of social evil. Today there is not a saloon, no open gambling den, nor a disorderly house. It is the largest city in the world without these dens of vice and as we have now existed about 12 months without them, it affords a living example of the fact that a large city can grow and prosper without such evils.

Prior to the closing of the joints we sent from 15 to 25 young men to the reformatory every year. In the 12 months since closing we have sent but two.

The expense for prosecuting criminals has been reduced $25,000 per annum. Expense for the police has been reduced as much more.

Our bank deposits have gained by $1,500,000.

The merchants upon our streets have had to employ additional clerks. One year ago, not to exceed two business men on the principal thoroughfares of this city, would have favored the closing of saloons. Today there are not two would favor opening them.

Twice since the saloons were closed we have held a city election at which the issue was presented to the people, and at each election the people have endorsed present conditions. Every banker is loud in praise of the present civic condition. The city is clean, crime is at a minimum, merchants prosperous and real estate advancing.

The city courts, created for the express purpose of trying petty suits for the collection of rents and grocery bills and formerly crowded with a black docket every day, have now practically no business, for the reason the people are paying their bills instead of being sued for them.

Our population has increased at a greater rate than ever before.

For the first time in 25 years the court of common pleas of this county opened its term the first Monday in May without a criminal case.

A year ago this city was trying to devise ways and means to spare the money to build additions to our city jails. Today the doors of the jails swing idly upon their hinges, and we have no use for those we have.

The attendance in our public schools has increased largely, and we have had to employ 18 additional teachers. The teachers inform us that this is largely of boys and girls of from 12 to 16 years of age, who prior to the closing of the saloons, were compelled to assist in supporting the family by reason of the father spending his wages for drink.

The charitable institutions report a reduction of more than two-thirds in the demand for aid. The juvenile court which has the care of dependent children, had but two applications in the past eight months, while prior to the closing of the joints, from eight to 88 children required aid and assistance each month.

At the commencement of the contest a large number of our people thought it would ruin business and destroy our prosperity, but it has stimulated business in all lines.

This city is now the experimental station of the world. If Kansas City, Kan., can close its saloons and keep them closed; and if the closing produces prosperity, happiness and contentment, then it is reasonable to assume that such results will follow a like policy in other large cities elsewhere.
