LIQUOR AN ISSUE IN THE ILLINOIS ELECTIONS

Chicago, Ill., April 7.—A determined fight for and against the Sunday opening of saloons marks the spring election in Chicago today. Voters in other sections of the state will be given an opportunity to decide between the warring factions of the "wets" and "drys." Leaders in the movement for an open Sunday are jubilant and declare that Chicago will today be rescued from the reign of hypocrisy. The appearance of a ballot on the Sunday question in today's election was brought about by the United Societies, which collected 13,050 feet of signatures, representing the desires of nearly 170,000 voters to pass upon the question. The petitions made a pile nearly seven feet in height and justify the United Societies' workers in their hope for a successful termination of their fight.

Local option is the principal issue to be decided by the spring elections in over three-fourths of the 102 Illinois counties. Springfield, the state capital, has been the scene of a hot campaign. The liquor dealers of that city combined to give a "horrible example" by voluntarily closing all saloons for a few days, in order to show the voters what the city will resemble under the order of things proposed by the Anti-Saloon league workers. The "wets" are hopeful that this practical illustration will bring about a revulsion of sentiment which will send the "drys" to overwhelming defeat in the election.

Twelve hundred townships and towns are taking part in today's gigantic contest between the forces of "personal liberty" and the opponents of the "rum demon." Spirited campaigns have been waged in all of them. Leaders of the Illinois Anti-Saloon league are confidently predicting that from 2000 to 3000 saloons will be wiped out of existence in the state today.

Today's elections are being held under the provisions of a township, city and village local option law. The last local option elections previously held in the state took place last November, when, out of 161 precincts in the southern part of the state, 142 voted "dry." This was heralded as a great victory by the Anti-Saloon league officials, and they are hopeful of repeating the victory on a larger scale today.

In this city, the stronghold of the liquor traffic in Illinois, one-half of the area is "dry" territory, saloons having been abolished from all the principal residence districts.

Dog Show on Coast.

Oakland, Cal., April 7.—Some of the best canines of the United States and England have been entered in the second annual bench show of the Oakland Kennel club, to be held during the next four days, and the exhibition will doubtless be one of the most successful ever held on the Pacific coast. Society leaders of Oakland and San Francisco are manifesting great interest in the show. Numerous beautiful and valuable cups will be awarded to prize winners.
