

THE IDEAL STORE

We have not seen the ideal store, but we have a plan to make FERGUSON'S as nearly ideal in service to our patrons as it is possible for hard work, unflinching courtesy and a steady application of our motto, "NOTHING IS TOO MUCH TROUBLE" to do.

Very truly yours,

FERGUSON'S

THE RIVER GRADE LIKELY

Advices have been received from Huntington to the effect that the Oregon Short Line has resumed work on the Northwest railroad, the extension from Huntington Homestead, which is the first line in the Huntington-Lewiston proposed cut-off, says the Telegram. It is stated that the O. S. L. office at Salt Lake, from which point this work will be directed, has issued instructions for the construction work to be rushed with as much dispatch as possible.

To that end three large grading outfits were assembled at Huntington Saturday, and they have gone down the river to the various camps which were abandoned when the general retrenchment policy of the Harriman system was adopted last fall at the time of the financial flurry.

The Northwest Railroad company, which is to be a feeder for the Oregon Short Line, proposes to complete the 60-mile road from a point about two miles out of Huntington and while it is to be built principally and for the immediate present, at least to furnish an outlet for the ores of the Iron Dyke copper mine, it is believed that it is but the first link in a cut-off from Huntington to Lewiston, which, when completed, will be the main line of the Oregon Short Line, and will divert through traffic from Salt Lake to Portland away from the heavy up and down haul over the Blue mountains, which interpose the stiffest grades in the entire length of the O. S. L.

Through traffic, both freight and passenger, will then be sent down at absolute water grade from Huntington to Portland, by way of Lewiston, connecting at that point with the Lewiston-Riparia cut-off, over which the first through train was just run, and which was commemorated by the excursion of Portland business men to Lewiston and Clarkston.

With such a cut-off in operation, a train could start at Huntington and "coast" all the way to Portland, running along the Snake river gorge to Lewiston and then following the O. R. & N. from Umatilla Junction, through Pendleton and Baker City to Huntington, would be a branch line and service would be local in character.

The Pastime Changes.
At the Pastime this afternoon was seen a complete change. The center of attraction and the big hit of the season at this popular amusement place is the "Sleeping Beauty," a film over 1000 feet long and entirely hand-painted. Managers La Fountain & Dozier say this is the most remarkable film sent out by any house. The entire program is to be seen in the house ad. in this issue.
