28 COUNTIES THREATENED

Prohibition threatens 28 of Oregon's 33 counties in the election June 1, says the Portland Oregonian. In every county except Baker, Multnomah, Clatsop and Benton—which is already dry—elections have been called on county prohibition. Seven of these counties are now dry—Curry, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Sherman, Tillamook, Wallowa and Yamhill. In wet Multnomah 26 precincts will vote on the liquor ban; in Baker three precincts and in Clatsop four.

It appears, therefore, that there is only one county which will not be confronted with a prohibition election anywhere in its borders—Benton—and in that county the liquor trade is already prohibited. Anti-prohibitionists evidently have no hope of lifting the liquor ban there, since they did not submit the matter to the election.

The outlook causes liquor manufacturers and dealers much alarm. They behold disastrous curtailment or ruin of their business staring them in the face. They would dread state prohibition far less, since many persons would oppose turning the state dry who are willing to prohibit liquor selling in their home precinct or county. County prohibition shuts out home manufacturers and dealers from the dry area, but not those in other states. Consequently, prohibition helps the outside trade and shuts off the business of the home brewers and dealers.

Quite naturally, the makers and traders of liquor will offer what resistance they can. But they are in the unfortunate position of being unable to make an aggressive fight for their cause, for fear of making prejudice and stirring up popular enmity. They say their foes misstate the facts, and the issues, and by appeal to popular passion, make reply largely futile. Still, the anti-prohibition forces will make what fight they can, seeking to avoid rancorous conflict.

Prohibitionists and other saloon fighters find much satisfaction in the prospect. Without bringing up the issue of state prohibition—for which they think their cause not yet prepared—they have caused elections in all but a small part of the state, and if successful, will prohibit the liquor traffic everywhere but in Multnomah, Clatsop and Baker, in which, however, there will be dry precincts. They say they are preparing for state prohibition and that in a few years, perhaps in two, they will have "cleaned up" so many counties that state prohibition will be only a short step forward from that stage.

The only counties not confronted with prohibition are Multnomah, Clatsop and Baker. In Multnomah, 20 precincts will vote on prohibition, which, if carried, will make practically all of East Portland and eastern Multnomah dry. In Clatsop four precincts will vote on the question, three of them in Astoria; in Baker, three precincts will vote on the liquor question.

All dry counties are now Benton, Curry, Lane, Lincoln, Linn, Sherman, Tillamook, Wallowa, Yamhill.

All wet counties are: Grant, Harney, Josephine, Klamath, Polk and Washington.
