SENATOR LA FOLLETTE.

Senator La Follette is a leader. He led the people of Wisconsin in a fight which has lasted eight years, to recover self-government in that state, and, though he got "results," though he, like Roosevelt, put through laws in the common interest, and aroused the people to a vision of the system, the one great achievement of La Follette's leadership is this: The people of Wisconsin rule the state of Wisconsin. La Follette has made them so clear and so self-reliant that they won't let even La Follette boss them. Now they have a representative democracy in Wisconsin. And that is why we have in La Follette a United States senator who tries to represent not interests; not Wisconsin; not even the people of Wisconsin, but all the people of all the United States.—Lincoln Steffens.

Columbia is Rising.

The upper Columbia is rising at every point from which data is received by the weather bureau. Except at Lewiston, the Snake is also rising at the various towns. However, there have been none of those phenomenal rises and but little fear is felt of an exceptional flood this season. In fact, the best information at hand indicates that the annual rise of the Columbia will be below the average unless there should be a protracted period of warm weather. It is explained that the snow in the mountains is not sufficient to make much of a flood unless it should all be melted in the course of about two weeks.—The Dalles Chronicle.
