PROHIBITION BANKRUPTCY

"Bankruptcy follows prohibition," say the liquor men. Testimony from business men from Maine to Wallawa county, Oregon, show business benefited by closing saloons. Who goes bankrupt?

The brewer, unless he goes into some useful business. Do not worry over him. He has built great buildings with money gotten from drinking men whose families have suffered and whose lives have been wrecked.

The distiller. He must change business or go broke. The whisky trust, one of the greatest and most vicious may be dissolved by prohibition. Who will weep?

The saloonkeeper. If he will not work at some honorable calling, he goes broke.

What does the community lose by his bankruptcy? Will any wife and children go cold or hungry? He can turn to useful employment and be happier.

The brothel. Yes, these dens cannot prosper in a dry county. No wonder that harlots favor saloons. The poor deluded inmates must turn from crime to honorable living or move to license towns.

Say, wouldn't some of this bankruptcy be a good thing?

BLIND PIGS ARE NO ARGUMENT

Saloon sympathizers are saying that law cannot be enforced, that "blind pigs" will openly run in La Grande in defiance of the law and the people.

Blind pigs are only possible where the citizens are blind and the officials are also conveniently blind.

The criminals who operate "blind pigs" are wise enough to know when sworn officers of the law will enforce the law and when law-breaking will be winked at and even encouraged by corrupt and dishonorable men in public offices.

Every argument in favor of the licensed saloon because of "blind pigs" is an insult to the manhood, patriotism and local officers of La Grande.

If we want anarchy let us end the farce of representative government.

If we believe in republican government let us insist that law must be enforced against all criminals, and with equal justice to all citizens. The great corporations and the saloons have no more right to violate the law than any ordinary citizens.

The "blind pig" argument is a confession of weakness, it is cowardly, contemptible, un-American, illogical, absurd, criminal.

Truth crushed to earth will rise again.

The eternal fields of God are here; But error writhes a while in pain, And dies among his worshippers.

But right is right, since God is God, And right the day will win; To doubt would be disloyalty— To falter would be sin.

Governor Hoke Smith, Georgia. The elimination of the saloon will help municipal politics everywhere."
