SAY TEAM IS DOOMED

Saloon men of the city, or rather, a portion of them, are venting their spleen on the baseball team by playing the "knocking" game and spreading the rumor that the aggregation will disband and crumble to pieces as soon as the saloons are ousted and the support from that source exhausted.

According to an itemized statement compiled by Grant Lincoln, he is now about $1100 short by virtue of having financed, in the main, the baseball team thus far. Mr. Lincoln is going to remain at the helm, but it is readily seen that he will need financial aid in lieu of that which he loses when the saloons cease to exist. Calculating on good attendances here, he has estimated that $250 will place his book account on an even break at the end of the season. The matter as it now stands is readily deciphered: the aggregation needs a small sum in subscriptions.

If the business men fail to support this proposition as they should, it will give the saloon men an incentive to howl in derision.

Already some of the merchants have been approached and, knowing as they do, the conditions as they exist, they come to the front liberally.

La Grande has a team which is attracting the attention of the sporting circles of the west, and as a medium of advertising is always strong. Consequently it behooves the citizen, be he fan, bug or disinterested in the national game at all, to meet this trifling donation and maintain the high standard of the La Grande team.

Tariff in the Convention.

Washington, June 9.—Some years ago the "Iowa idea" in the matter of tariff schedules held the center of the stage. Now it is the "Ohio idea" that promises to produce the biggest fight in the convention soon to be held at Chicago. For the Ohio idea, as embodied in the tariff plank of the state platform, is also the Taft idea and the idea of the administration. The Taft and the administration forces will attempt to write the Ohio idea into the national platform, and if they succeed in doing so, it will be only after a most terrific struggle. The Ohio idea is not the idea of the old-liners, the stand-patters, in the republican party, and they are prepared to fight it to the last ditch.

The tariff plank in the Ohio platform was written by Wade Ellis, attorney general of Ohio. Before it was written, at least before it was presented to the state convention, Ellis consulted with Taft. The plank had the unqualified endorsement of the secretary of war, and there has been no concealment of this fact. The Ohio republican platform is just as much the personal platform of Taft as the Nebraska democratic platform is the personal platform of William Jennings Bryan. It is a distinct and definite pledge that the tariff tax shall not more than equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, together with a reasonable profit.
