Chicago, June 17.—(3 o'clock p. m.)

—Bulletin.—When Henry Cabot Lodge mentioned the name of Roosevelt this afternoon, there was great cheering, and when he called him the "Much abused, but the most popular president," there was a great ovation. The delegates from Nevada, and others, leaped to their feet and yelled at the top of their voices. Enthusiasm swept over the whole convention. It was noted, however, that the Ohio delegates did not take part in the demonstration.

Bourne Wild With Glee.
Senator Jonathan Bourne of Oregon was among the leaders of the ovation. Mrs. Alice Longworth covered her face with her hands and seemed unable to control her emotions. Fairbanks, of Springfield, O., a brother of the vice-president, stood on a chair in the special balcony, and led the cheering in that vicinity.

When Charles P. Taft, brother of Secretary Taft, was asked what the significance of the demonstration was, he replied:
"Nothing in it. Nothing at all; just working off a little steam."

Cheering Continues.
The wild cheering and yelling, and waving of handkerchiefs, and hats continued for half an hour. Chairman Lodge ordered the band to play "Garry Owen," and the crowd, knowing it was the president's favorite tune, went into still wilder demonstrations. The noise increased. The crowd began yelling, "Four years more, four, four years more."

Lodge smiled blandly. Then some one pointed out the president's daughter, and the crowd turned toward her. Alice took the greatest care not to do anything that would lead to the support of the demonstration. She smiled, then hid her face again in her hands. It was evident that she was in an embarrassing position.

Teddy Bear Appears.
A huge Teddy bear was raised high in the air from the newspaper section. This increased the cheering, which seemed to have reached the limit of human vocal possibilities. Lodge pounded on his desk with the gavel, but the sound could not be heard 20 feet away. He waved his hands in an effort to restore order. He pounded still more. The crowd seemed to have lost its self-control and the cheering continued.

Cheering Grows Wilder.
During the ovation flags were waved, canes pounded on the floor, wild old and young men leaped up, and down in the aisles. An Oklahoma delegate took off his coat and hat and waved it wildly, yelling like an "Injun." Congressman Longworth's face flushed, and he bit his fingernails. The band played "Hot Time in the Old Town," but this failed to stop the demonstration. Senator Depew lost his usual composure, stood up in his chair and waved his handkerchief. A fakir caused a commotion by taking advantage of the disorder to rush down the aisle offering pictures of the president. When the ovation was dying out the Texas delegation yelled: "Roosevelt! Roosevelt!"

Labor Leaders Hopeful.
Fired with new hope and confidence by positive assurance from Taft and Roosevelt, the labor leaders today are conducting their campaign more vigorously than ever to obtain the anti-injunction plank.

Manufacturers Equally Active.
James Van Cleave, president of the National Manufacturers' association, is preparing to use desperate means to defeat the plank. Van Cleave insists that the plank will turn all voters who have money invested in this country against the republican party. They are busy with the telephone and telegraph, lining up the big commercial organizations, urging them to bring influence to bear on the delegates from their respective localities.

Will Mark New Epoch.
Gompers is equally busy on the other side. There is little doubt but that the battle for recognition of labor's demands for what labor considers "just protection," will be the event which will give this convention its place in history of the development of the country.

The plank would provide that injunctions could not be issued without a hearing. It would pledge the party to change the law in such a way as to prevent the issuance of a summary order by federal judges in strike cases.

Injunction Plank Presented.
The labor plank, as adopted by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, was presented to a sub-committee of the committee on resolutions of the convention today.

Labor asks that it be placed in the platform of the republican party. It was submitted by Gompers, in the following form:
Labor Independent of Capital.
"The republican party is in accord with Lincoln when he declared: 'Labor is prior to and independent of capital; labor is superior of capital, and deserves more consideration.' The republican party has been a staunch defender of property and property rights, yet it holds that personal rights, and human liberty must of necessity be entitled to a first consideration.

"Recognizing new conditions are arising from the marvelous industrial development, our people and the nation realize the fact that the wheel of commerce and industry must require a new law; new conceptions of the law must be enacted with modern industry, commerce and the advance of freedom in line therewith.

"We therefore pledge the republican party to the enactment of laws by congress, guaranteeing to the wage-earners, agriculturists and horticulturists of our country the right of organized effort to the end that such associations and their members shall not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade. We pledge ourselves to the enactment of a law to prohibit the issuance of injunctions in cases arising out of labor disputes, when such injunctions would not apply when no labor disputes were exacted; that in no case shall the injunction be issued when there exists a remedy by ordinary process of law."

Want Employers' Liability Act.
The labor plank contains the following:
"And which shall provide that in the procedure for punishment for contempt of court, the party cited for contempt shall, when such contempt is not committed in actual presence of the court, be entitled to a jury trial. We pledge the republican party to the enactment of an amendment extending to the existing eight-hour law to all government employees and for all workers whether employed by contract or by sub-contractors, for doing work for, or in behalf of the government. We pledge the republican party to the enactment into law by congress as far as federal jurisdiction can extend, for the federal employees' liability act for injury to body or loss of life suffered by employees."

The plank demands a law to extend federal jurisdiction; to grant woman's suffrage; to submit a constitutional amendment to the state for ratification, providing for absolute suffrage of woman equal to that of men; a law creating a department of labor separate from any existing department, with a secretary at its head holding a seat in the cabinet; a law creating a federal bureau of mines and mining, preferably under the proposed department of labor; a law appropriating sufficient funds for investigation of causes of great disasters, for the purpose of recommending laws and regulations preventing terrible loss of life in mines; a law establishing a United States government savings banks.

Gompers Strikes Home.
In presenting the plank President Samuel Gompers said in his speech, that revolution would be the result in this country if the labor unions were destroyed, or if they were treated on the same plane as "criminal trusts" and monopolies. He said:
"We do not want to eat the employer as an appetizer before breakfast, nor as dessert after, but we want fair treatment and we are going to get it. We are not anarchists, or destroyers of property; we do not represent that idea. We are loyal to the institutions of America as any body, but we want to retain the right to organize, and take steps to meet enactments."

Excitement on Floor.
Wade Ellis of Ohio, asked Gompers if it were true that there had been only 23 injunctions against labor in the last five years.
"I deny that," said Gompers. "The man who made that statement knows it is not true."
"I made that statement," announced T. A. Emory, general counsel for the National Manufacturers' association. An exciting scene was prevented by the action of Chairman Hopkins who told Gompers to proceed. Gompers then introduced a document from the records of the house of representatives, including 23 injunction cases, explaining that they were selected from hundreds. Emory asked the committee to examine the injunction cases referred to by Gompers. Emory said: "In some cases injunctions were issued for the purpose of restraining men from parading mining camps to prevent others from going to work."

This ended the public hearing, and the committee went into executive session.
It is expected that the hitch over the anti-injunction plank has blocked the procedure of the convention this afternoon. After a stormy session the

MAY LOCATE A CANNERY HERE

GRANTS PASS FINANCIERS ADVANCE PLAUSIBLE SCHEME.

Two Experienced Cannery Men From Grants Pass in Consultation With Commercial Club Today Relative to Erecting $25,000 Cannery in This City—Have Considerable Money to Invest—Possible to Reduce Needed Sum to Small Amount.

That La Grande may land a $25,000 cannery, the construction of which is to commence this season, is the highly pleasing news that is going the rounds today, based on substantial facts. Realizing the logic of establishing a cannery right here in the heart of a fertile valley, Messrs. Sampson and Weber of Grants Pass, arrived in the city today for the purpose of looking over the ground and to take the matter up with the Commercial club. The Commercial club is a busy body these days and already have several very favorable propositions on hand, but this is one where quick returns will be available. The men spent but a short time in the city, because they are experienced cannery men and promptly sized the location here as a very desirable one. They went immediately to the board of managers with their proposition, and during the day the board considered the proposition put up to them.

It sounded good. The Grants Pass people come here with years of experience, and aside from that, they have a tidy sum which they wish to invest. They ask for a subsidy naturally, existing conditions may reduce that to a very small amount, compared with the extent of the project as it is planned.

One of the large produce houses on Jefferson avenue is available, and may be turned in by the owners as stock in the new company. If this is done it will leave but a very few thousand dollars to be raised, either in stock or a subsidy, as the case may be.

At this early date, it is out of place to state details of the plans as the unforeseen may occur, but it is expected that the Commercial club will lend its sanction to the project at an early hour. A fruit cannery has long been a needed industry in this city and valley. On the face of the present proposition everything seems favorable and it is to be hoped the city will land the industry at this time. It is but a matter of a few years until a plant of this nature will become an absolute necessity, by reason of the ever-increasing fruit acreage in this valley, and so, if the plans advanced

THE PLACE TO SAVE MONEY
LA GRANDE, OREGON.

IT OUGHT TO BE THE HAPPINESS AND GLORY of every citizen to so live and act that his fellow citizens will esteem him for his goodness, his kindness, and his usefulness. The principles of good citizenship should constitute the code of rules for every kind of business whether public or private. This applies particularly to the drug business, because, owing to the limited knowledge of the qualities of drugs by the general public, it follows that the reliability of the druggist is the chief guarantee of good service.
