LATEST NEWS FROM ROAD

CONSTRUCTION CAMP TO BE MOVED TO WALLOWA TOWN

The railroad will reach this city within the next three weeks, says the Wallowa Sun, published Friday. This is the verdict of all railroad men who have been interviewed, while some of them place the time much less. The track-laying machine is at work and on straight track will lay better than two miles a day.

Chief Construction Engineer Brandon was in the city Wednesday, accompanied by Engineer McCoy, who is in charge of the construction. In conversation with Wallowa business men they stated that the road will reach this place in three weeks, and Mr. McCoy confirmed the report that the construction camp would be moved to this place at that time.

Edward Holmes stopped at the camp Wednesday afternoon on his way in from La Grande. The track-laying machine began work on this side of the river at 2 o'clock that afternoon and proceeded rapidly, laying 150 yards in half an hour, while he was there. The foreman in charge told him the track would be out of the canyon by a week from tomorrow and that the road will reach Wallowa in 16 days at most.

BEN BROWN RULES.

W. W. Curtiss Steps for Ben Brown's Theory of Naming City.

The Observer is in receipt of personal letter from W. W. Curtiss of Portland, who yesterday advanced one reason why La Grande received the name it did. The letter is self-explanatory and follows:

Portland, Aug. 21—(Editor Observer.)—I see by the paper received this evening that Uncle Ben Brown had come through with how La Grande got its name. I was extremely sorry that I had not held my letter for one more day, and would have made it read a little different. Uncle Ben is doubtless right as to the way it was named, as that was the usual custom in the pioneer days. My authority was derived from the records of the government establishing a townsite and post-office and giving it the name "La Grand."

As to the meaning of the name and also the information I endeavored to give about Grande Ronde, I have no doubt but I am right.

Yours truly,
W. W. CURTISS.

Admirers of the great Commoner, William Jennings Bryan, can hear the distinguished gentleman's voice in 10 short, pithy speeches, at Davis' Music Store.
