New York, Aug. 29.—America today extended a formal welcome and expressed its pride, to the stalwart athletes who carried the Stars and Stripes to victory in the great Olympic games near London. New York was given over to the reception. A parade of soldiers, sailors, brass bands and decorated automobiles passed down Broadway through a tremendous throng.

Each athlete received a gold medal, and a silver cup was also given to John Hayes, winner of the Marathon race. The crowd sang national anthems.

Flags waived a welcome from the skyscrapers as Grand Marshal George Wingate and his staff led the parade, the former in advance of the first division. Then came regulars from Governor's Island, followed by marines. The second division was composed of New York National Guard, and naval militia, while the third division was composed of Irish volunteers. The fourth division was the main section of the big procession, as it included the heroes in whose honor the celebration is being held. The various athletic clubs brought up the rear and formed the fifth division.

Hayes received the prizes from acting Mayor McGowan. Hayes sister, Mary, rushed through the crowd assembled and climbed upon the stand, and threw her arms around her brother and kissed him, with tears running down her cheeks.
