Walla Walla, Sept. 2 .- The Washin round numbers, 27,000,000 bushels, according to the estimate of State Brain Inspector John W. Arrasmith, who has just returned from a trip brough the Walla Walla and other ereal regions of the state.

"The growers' income from their wheat fields will be about the same.' said Mr. Arrasmith, "as during any verage preceding year. Ordinarily we raise about 33,000,000 bushels, but he farmer does not get as much for t as the price for which he is selling this season. Notwithstanding that the prices were good, even high, last year, the growers are getting from 8 to 10 cents more a bushel this year. Wheat s much better for milling this season ban that grown in the state last season. While the grains are shrunken and little, they are very hard, making good kernel of excellent color and trong in gluten. Wheat last season was very plump and starchy, but was bleached out by the rains, was soft, and carried a low percentage of glu-

the grain inspector's office from all the warehouses of the Northern Pacific, Great Northern and O. R. & N., in Washington's wheat belt, showing the exact amount of last season's wheat delivered to the roads for shipment to be 37,989,921 bushels. State Inspector Arrasmith estimates that 6,000,000 bushels stayed in the wheat belt. This was delivered to the local mills, and used as feed and as seed by the farmers.

Do Not Affect Oregon.

R. H. Weber of this city, who is member of the state board of horticulture, says that the proposed increase in the freight rates on apples will not greatly affect the Oregon frultgrowers, relates The Dalles Chron-

"The apple growers of Oregon will not feel the increase in freight rates," said Mr. Weber in speaking with a Chronicle reporter Saturday, "for the reason that Oregon apples are shipped directly to New York, to the wealthy

"We do not ship to the middle west and it is through the middle west, from Oregon to Chicago, that the freight rates on apples are to be increased. No, it is my opinion that the Oregon apple growers will not be affected by an increase in rates."

The boy at whom he had waved saw that something was wrong, and he gave the alarm at the office of the candy works.

Other employes in the building rushed to the fire escape, and when they picked up the lad he was already dead. Death had been instantaneous.

Coorner oNrden was notified, and he took charge of the remains, and is this afternoon making a personal investigation of the fatal accident. He will hold an inquest, and the electric light company will be asked to explain why it had strung deadly wires, entirely unprotected in such close proximity to the fire escape, where danger from contact would be imminent to any person climbing onto the escape.
