

"THE CAT AND THE FIDDLE" TONIGHT

CURTAINS WILL BE RAISED ON FIRST ACT AT NINE O'CLOCK

"The Cat and the Fiddle."

There is an attraction at the Baker this week which every child will be tickled with, say a recent issue of the Portland Telegram, referring to "The Cat and Fiddle" which comes to the Steward tonight. It is "The Cat and the Fiddle," one of those extravaganzas which are rarely found on the road these days. From the start "The Cat and the Fiddle" made good with the capacity audience and swung along at a lively clip, keeping the house in constant suspense, owing to the surprises. The company must be carrying a vast amount of scenery and "props" for there are innumerable "drops" and a multitude of trick stuff. It is even more of a "trick scenery" show than "The Devil's Auction" or any of Hanlon's spectacular successes of a generation ago. Almost every minute something happens. Flowers spring out of nothing, and so do dinners, smoking material and even people. All disappear with equal dispatch. There are more things doing than at a circus, for articles are appearing and disappearing again in all corners of the stage. Mechanical magic plays an important part in the entertainment, and when the tricks are momentarily suspended there are songs and dances by a capable company of comedians and pretty girls.

The EIGHT SAILOR MAIDS with the CAT and the FIDDLE.

Show Was Well Presented.

"The Holy City" played to a house well filled with appreciative people last evening, in a manner highly creditable. Though seen last year there were many who went again last evening and were satisfied again. There are close to a half dozen first-class actors and those who cannot lay so much claim to notoriety, figured less conspicuously, making an even balanced company. Acting such as is seldom witnessed in any tragedy, was put to the view of the audience from the first curtain to the last drop. The stage settings and light effects were exceptionally fine.

mindful of this. The seats went on sale Friday morning and early in the day big inroads had been made on the board.

The Scenic.

The Scenic put on a good show last night. The moving pictures are such as hold interest and prove entertaining to any crowd. The vaudeville sketches last evening were new and really funny. The crowds to continue to swarm about the door trying to gain admittance whenever a new thing is put on at the Scenic.

Three Great Films.

"You get your money's worth at the Pastime," says Manager Heacock in speaking of the splendid program which is being presented this afternoon, and again tonight, "Richard III" is easily the head-liner, but does not stand alone in question of excellency for the other two attractions are remarkably good. In fact, it is seldom that three first-class films are presented during one program. Mr. Ferrin will sing again tonight.
