

NOVEMBER AT THE PEOPLE'S STORE

LISTEN: OUR STORE is as full of new fall goods as it will hold. Every line of Fall's newest style dictates is represented here. We brought these goods here because we needed them--because you needed them. We expected an exceptionally large fall trade and we are getting it. These goods here now must be gone by December the first. At that time we will begin opening a new line of the largest collection of Holiday goods ever shown in this town. We will need lots of room for this new display. We want to hurry things a little with this present stock in order to get it out of the store during this month. Consequently all during November--every day from now until December 1st--you can expect many special bargain prices here. We know that bargain prices do move things. This entire stock is now on the move.

received that another was loudly demanded by the visitors. The chorus sang "Cobwebs" very pleasingly.

Lunched at Model.

All visiting delegates and guests were given luncheon at the Model restaurant with the entertaining clubs as hostesses. Following a delicious luncheon, the guests were whisked away in carriages, private conveyances and automobiles, to the sugar factory, where Manager Fred G. Taylor was the host of the hour. The factory closes its season's run tonight and the guests of the city availed themselves of the opportunity to see the institution in operation. They came back lauding the factory and the courteous treatment received.

5--Adjournment.

In replying to the greetings, Mrs. Sadler said:

To be so generously welcomed to breathe the invigorating air of the Grande Ronde valley, and enjoy the hospitality of the city of La Grande, where we have been told flows pure water, abides pure women, and some pure men--presumably club husbands--does not come as a surprise to us, but since our arrival we have found a country possessed of so much more varied resources, of so much greater natural beauty, that we are filled with amazement.

Through the praiseworthy co-operation of your local press, we have learned of the efforts put forth for our entertainment, because of your loyalty to club women and club work, by your representative women, aided and abetted by your representative men, who are important, though silent factors in clubdom.

We who represent the clubs of the state, return the compliment in the most fitting manner, by coming diverse ways and distances to accept your courtesy.

While we do not wish or intend to neglect the social side of this convention, we are here for serious reasons.

Each delegate represents a local condition that is of vital importance to her, and she is hoping for some helpful suggestions from clubs working along parallel lines, that will throw light upon her own tangled problems.

What One Town Did.

There are those who represent peculiar conditions. I think I will take just a moment here and speak of one.

Over a half century ago there was established at Aurora, Oregon, a German colony, intentionally shut in from all the outside world, growing or manufacturing everything used; giving little attention to education other than music, in which it offered superior advantages. The old colony band was at that time famous throughout the state.

Although the colony has been disbanded 25 years, it has left behind conservative ideas that do not contribute to club advancement.

A handful of club women that are progressive, have fitted up a reading room, have the use of the traveling library, and a few club and individual donations of books. Three--not the least prized, coming from our state president.

Our ladies have tried, with only moderate success, to interest the public in the development of our library, and have received little encouragement in plans for the improvement of our village, that is as naturally beautiful as any spot upon which Mount Hood sheds her radiance.

While this peculiar condition exists only in the locality mentioned, most clubs at some time meet with overwhelming difficulties, and needs to be kept closely in touch with the example of the most progressive.

And hold fast to faith in the united effort of the state federation. Faith will not enable a man to lift a ton all at once, but it will, 10 pounds at a time.
