One might naturally judge that the majority of the women in Portland are frequent customers of the saloon, by reading the fierce conflict that is going on between the city council and the mayor over the attempt to pass an ordinance prohibiting women from entering and drinking in saloons. Out of it will come better conditions, but perhaps not all that was hoped for by the people who started the agitation.

A farmer in The Observer office today stated that there were no less than 50,000 acres of land in this valley being summer fallowed every season, and he was not sure but that twice that amount. A little water would make this waste so unprofitable that the fallow system would be entirely abandoned.

A prominent business man in this city, who is enthusiastic over the park project, suggested that we have a tag day set apart in the near future. It is an easy and patriotic way to secure funds for public purposes. It has never been tried here, and the park scheme would be an ideal feature to inaugurate it.

The country at large is beginning to realize the value of alfalfa as fertilizer. Land that has been worn out by years of cropping soon regains its former life after being seeded a short time to alfalfa.

We are informed that city park project is taking shape and that the committee to whom certain work has been assigned will be ready to report very soon.

Patience is not only a virtue, but a necessity, when it comes to the government selecting a site for a federal building.

Adopt Resolutions.

The following resolutions were adopted:

We, the members and delegates of the State Federation of Women's clubs, in convention assembled at the eighth meeting held in La Grande, November 10, 11, 12, 1908, desiring to express our earnest appreciation of the unbounded hospitality of our entertainers, do hereby resolve:

That we return most hearty thanks to our hostesses, the Neighborhood and Lyle Tuesday Musical clubs of La Grande, whose untiring efforts have left nothing undone that could in any way contribute to our comfort, entertainment and pleasure;

To the Masonic and Eastern Star lodges for courtesies extended in tendering the use of their lodge rooms for our sessions;

To the musicians, both vocal and instrumental, who have so graciously and delightfully contributed to our entertainment;

To the little pages who have rendered such efficient service in so quiet and charming a manner;

To the Evening Observer for its many courtesies extended, including a daily complimentary copy to each member of the convention and the special Federation edition of Thursday, and to both the Morning Star and the Evening Observer for their full and accurate report of our proceedings;

To the publishers of the Portland Journal, to whom the clubs of the state are especially indebted for the entire page of its Sunday edition given to club women and their work so ably edited by the president of the State Federation;

To the speakers from abroad, who have contributed so much to our instruction and entertainment;

To the First Baptist church for the use of its building for the Wednesday evening lectures;

To the church of the Latter Day Saints for the concert provided for

To the lodge of Elks for giving up their Tuesday evening entertainment; To Mr. Fred Taylor, manager of the Amalgamated Sugar company for the contribution of the die for the design of the badge, and for courtesies extended in Tuesday's visit to the factory;
