Your teeth are valuable. In a healthy condition they are a source of health, beauty and pleasure, but if allowed to go uncared for they are likely to become the personification of all that is foul, dangerous and painful

"Why Girls Leave Home," which comes to the Steward tonight, played the Gillis theater in Kansas City earlier in the season, says an exchange. It is a popular priced drama of the type that thrills every 15 seconds, although the old-fashioned methods of gun play and knife sticking are absent. It is a noteworthy fact that melodra-

Patrons of the Gillis in Kansas City and similar playhouses in other cities demand the stereotyped villain, hero and heroine, and only ask to have new the "situations."

The press agent of the A. G. Barnes trained animal show, relates an account of his visit to Butte, Mont., eight months ago. I was in a hardware store securing some needed repairs for a trunk, when the proprietor of the store, who was not aware that I was connected with the show, said to a customer: "Well, I suppose you are going to the theater tonight, Mr. E—, and see the animal show?" "No, most emphatically no," was his quick reply. "Why not?" asked the merchant. "Well," he said, "I am 68 years of age, and visited theaters for over 40 years; but that's all past, now. I am too old and don't care anything about shows." Just about that time the funny old clown and Maud, the kicking mule; the Arabian ponies, the baby elephants and other animals passed by the place in parade. "My," he said, "but those are mighty fine ponies; and, goodness me, look at that mule kick that old wagon to smithereens! Must be quite an outfit." That night the old gentleman was at the ticket office purchasing tickets for himself and four grandchildren. The agent, who recognized him, said: "Well, I thought you were not going to the show tonight." His quick reply was, "Well, I wouldn't have come, but had to bring the children." That night was the event of his life, and he was still smiling as he homeward went. We fully expect to see lots of the old folks at the show, even if he has to lay the blame on the children. The animal show appears here at the opera house Monday and Tuesday nights, December 7 and 8. The admission will be 75c, 50c and 35c.
