the starte at his & R. & M. power house. After experimenting for weeks has been anchored and now stands ready for use. If the blasts heard yesterday afternoon are the limits of possibilities in noise making propensities. the alarm is but little better than the present farce. The tone of the whistle is low and in frosty weather will carry far. The peculiarity of the pitch, when acquainted with the public ear, may serve well in the day time, but the average sleep will not be disturbed by it at night.

Adopt Code, Too,

Now that the whistle is ready for use, the chief of the fire department is framing up a code t obe published in the press and memorized by the public. This code will be so exhaustive that it will inform in a greater or less degree, the exact location of the Business on the O. R. & N. is light, in fact, is below the average for this time of the year. But this is the first real let-up of the remarkably long period of extraordinary activity. The summer and fall months have stood for long hours and constant work by the local railroad men, and their salaries during that time have been fat.

Today the round house is filled to capacity, almost, with idle engines, but when the new schedule goes into effect, even though freight business does not pick up-which it undoubtedly will with the approach of the holldays-it will require more power to take the trains over the eastern Oregon division than is now required on the present slow running time.

Work Train Withdrawn.

One of the work trains held in Wal lowa county for final ballasting has been withdrawn. Engine 147, with Engineer Dupes, is the locomotive to come in, though the engineer was left at the front with another engine.
