HOUSE IN RUINS

with one for $5.
Individual Losses.
Most of the first floor furnishings were removed from both parts.

The individual losses are hard to ascertain today. In the Ivanhoe home the loss by complete destruction is conservatively placed at $200, and the damage to furniture by water and removal in addition to articles at present not known to be lost, will bring the total up to $250 at the lowest estimate. Much of the first-floor furniture was removed. Forrest Ivanhoe's room was on the second floor, and all the furnishings and fixings in it were a total loss. Several ingrain carpets, summer clothing, and articles of no immediate value to the family, were stored upstairs, where rescue could not be effected.

But over and above such pecuniary losses as may be discovered, there were pictures and family relics of great value to the family, that are missing. Some of them were saved, but the driving snowstorm and the water from the hose used in fighting the flames completely ruined a great number of photographs and other perishable keepsakes.

The same thing is more or less true of the Buehler property. Not quite as much of the household effects were removed, and the loss to Mr. Buehler will be as great or even greater than the loss sustained by Mr. Ivanhoe. Neither of the families carried insurance on the household goods. The residence was insured for $4000.

Sufferers Are Grateful.

The most conspicuous feature of the night's strenuousness for the large crowd that swarmed the lawns and thoroughfares, was the extreme care exercised by every workman. In only one instance did the excitement of the hour cause carelessness, when one large mirror was broken. But almost without exception, furniture was handled with the best of care, the volunteers keeping in mind the need of caution in their work. The sufferers are especially thankful for this. Mr. and Mrs. Ivanhoe today wish it explicitly stated that they are more than grateful, not only for the dispatch in removing property, but the care shown in doing it. A group of excited men can do more damage than good in such instances, but last night this feature was missing. "We are grateful to the fire department and to the volunteers, but we have no way of expressing it excepting through the press," said Mrs. Ivanhoe today. "The fact in the case is, we have never known a case where so much care was exercised by volunteers under like circumstances, as last evening."

Never before in the history of the city has there been such a swarming to house tops as during the height of the fire. No more spectacular pyrotechnical display has been seen here than when the flames shot up from the burning structure, sending great showers of sparks in a northwesterly direction. The home of Dr. Mollitor was not the only one to be menaced; homes several blocks away were in as great danger on account of the gale carrying the live embers a great distance. In an area including several blocks, where the flames would have devastated dwelling after dwelling had they overpowered the department, the property owners were sprinkling the house tops. In the block with the fire, the barns and houses owned by Dr. Mollitor and A. C. Huntington, the contest with the sparks was a lively one. The adjoining block was no less out of danger. A belated visitor to the fire discovered a burning ember on the Newton home, between Main and Washington, on Third street. Timely aid prevented a conflagration in that thickly settled district of the city.

The menaced section of the city was large, and once out of control there could have been no means of staying the mad progress until the railroad tracks had been reached, thus laying waste block after block.

Destruction Complete.

The Hills-Andros structure is a complete loss. The building of it has been spasmodic, with the result that there were innumerable walls where there was no obstruction to the flames. For some time the only evidence of a fire visible was occasional whiffs of smoke making their way out between the shingles of the roof. It afterward developed that the walls were ablaze during that time, though no one was aware of it. From the basement the flames followed the partitions to the remotest corners. The house was built in sections, from time to time, and on account of these many partitions be-

Cured of a Severe Attack of Bronchitis by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

"On October 18th, last, my little 3-year-old daughter contracted a severe cold which resulted in a bad case of bronchitis," says Mrs. W. G. Gibson, Lexington, Ky. "She lost the power of speech completely and was a very sick child. Fortunately we had a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house and gave it to her according to the printed directions. On the second day she was a great deal better, and on the fifth day, October 23d, she was entirely well of her cold and
