MEASURES TO VOTE ON

SIX PROPOSITIONS ARE NOW UP TO THE PEOPLE.

Legislature Refers Measures of Great Importance to the Electorate Approval—Six in All and They Are to Be Decided at General Election in 1910.

Six propositions, all of great importance to the state, will be submitted to the people at the election of 1910 by direction of the legislature, besides other questions that are certain to be placed before the voters by using the initiative, says the Portland Journal.

The matter to arouse the greatest interest will be the McArthur amendment to the constitution, authorizing the creating of railroad districts for the purpose of issuing bonds and constructing new lines of railway in undeveloped sections of the state.

Of great importance also are the twin amendments going away with the constitutional provisions uniform and equal taxation and permitting the classification of property at different rates, the object being to separate state and county taxation and to raise state taxes from franchises and grants of privileges by the public corporations.

These amendments are strongly urged by the state Grange, which has gone over the whole field and framed its course toward the system followed in Wisconsin and other states of the east. It is urged that this would end the skirmishing by county assessors over the tax rate, as it would remove the taxes for state purposes from consideration by county assessors, many of whom now try to outmaneuver the others in order to escape as much of the state tax as possible.

Opponents of the amendment, on the other hand, assert that it would open the doors to possible discrimination against classes of property that should be protected. Senator Hart expressed the fear that it would lead to single tax legislation. It is evident that there will be a wide field for debate on the proposed amendments. There are two of them, intended to stand or fall together.

Another amendment to be voted on is Senator Coffey's plan for legislative redistricting. He proposes to have as many senatorial districts as there are senators, and as many representative districts as there are representatives. This would increase Multnomah's representation, adhering strictly to population as a basis.

This completes the list of amendments proposed by the legislature, but two other propositions are to be submitted to the people in accordance with bills that were passed. One of these is the question of a constitutional convention, which provoked a hot fight in the legislature, its opponents declaring that the people do not want a revision of the constitution and that it would be a waste of time and money to submit the matter.

Two hundred thousand dollars for an asylum in eastern Oregon is another question to be voted up or down in November, 1910. If the people approve the plan the location will be determined by a board provided for in the bill, the choice being limited to Baker City, Pendleton and Union.
