RE-INTER REMAINS AFTER FIFTY YEARS SINCE BURIAL

J. L. Woodell has returned from Wapello county, Iowa, where he has been for the past two and a half months. This is Mr. Woodell's first visit to his old home since leaving for the west in April, 1862. Of course, he was greatly pleased to again see the home of his boyhood and once more see the familiar scenes and meet his early acquaintances. His real purpose, however, in making his trip, was not so much for the pleasure of the visit, but principally to see that his mother's remains were properly re-interred in the Bladensburg cemetery. The disinterment was made necessary from the fact that at the time of the burial more than 50 years ago, there was then no regular cemetery near and the interment was made on the Woodell homestead. Now that the thriving little city of Bladensburg has grown up near the family home, Mr. Woodell thought best that the remains be placed in a permanent cemetery in the family lot.

When the grave was opened and the casket taken out, a most extraordinary condition was found to exist. The following extract from the Ottumwa Courier will give our readers a full and complete account of the remarkable occurrence:

"In the disinterment and reburial of the remains of Mrs. Mary Woodell, at Bladensburg Monday, a strange case of preservation was presented. The hair of the deceased, who was buried 52 years ago, was found to be just as upon the day she was placed in the casket. The bone comb, which ladies at that time used to fasten their hair, was in a perfect state of preservation. The hair was in no way disarranged, and looked as if dressed but yesterday. The balance of the remains had suffered the effects of the long time interred and little but the bare skeleton was left. The coffin, however, was most remarkable in its state of preservation. While the lid had suffered somewhat by its encasement in mother earth and had broken inward, the bottom and sides of the casket were as solid and strong as ever. No sign of decay or age was visible in the wood, which was of oak. The coffin had been made by a neighbor over half a century ago and when the disinterment was being made, the coffin was too heavy to be removed from the earth, as a quantity of water had accumulated in it. The remains were transferred into a zinc case made for the purpose and reburial was in the Bladensburg cemetery.

The removal of the remains of Mrs. Woodell takes one back over a period of more than 50 years and brought to Wapello county, her son, who for half a century has been a resident of Oregon and away from the place of his birth. James L. Woodell and J. A. Woodell of La Grande, Ore., first saw the light of day on the homestead, where at this time the disinterment took place. In 1862 the Woodell family left for Oregon where they have resided since, having won for themselves honored and respected places in the communities in which they have made their homes.

At the time of the death of Mrs. Woodell, there being no cemetery in the township, the remains were interred on the Woodell farm, where it was planned to make the cemetery. The son, James, arrived a few days ago from Oregon to have the remains properly interred in the Bladensburg cemetery. At the reburial were present three who were present at the original funeral service, the son, James L. Woodell, L. D. Yeager, a brother of the deceased, and his wife, Mrs. Yeager.—Ottumwa Courier.

$1,000 More.

Under the new emergency tax law for the reapportionment of the state revenue among the various counties, Wallowa's share is raised $1000, and this county will have to send $10,327.50 to Salem.—Enterprise News-Record.

Stiff Neck.

Stiff neck is caused by rheumatism of the muscles of the neck. It is usually confined to one side, or to the back of the neck and one side. While it is often quite painful, quick relief may be had by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Not one case of rheumatism in 10 requires internal treatment. When there is no fever and no swelling as in muscular and chronic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Liniment will accomplish more than any internal treatment. For sale by all good dealers.

Near Death in Big Pond.

It was a thrilling experience to Mrs. Ida Soper to face death. "For years a severe lung trouble gave me intense suffering," she writes, "and several times nearly caused my death. All remedies failed and doctors said I was incurable. Then Dr. King's New Discovery brought quick relief and a cure so permanent that I have not been troubled in 12 years." Mrs. Soper lives in Big Pond, Pa. It works wonders in coughs and colds, sore lungs, hemorrhages, la grippe, asthma, croup, whooping cough and all bronchial affections. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.
