NORTHWEST NEWS.

The big revival meetings among the Indians on the reservation and under the auspices of the Presbyterian church will be held at the Tutuilla mission for one week, beginning with Wednesday, May 28.

The hearing of the O. R. & N. side of the grain rates in effect between eastern Oregon points and Portland, which was to have been held yesterday before the railroad commission at Salem, failed to materialize. The head officials of the road had been called from the state on business so the hearing was postponed until April 26.

Among other questions absorbing the attention of the Walla Walla Traction company, it is understood, is the location of an amusement park for the coming summer. Several propositions are receiving their consideration and within a few days it is very likely that some site will be definitely decided upon.

Hear ye, hear ye, Hear ye now! Friday and Saturday, March 26 and 27 has been duly set apart by the common council of the city of Pendleton, state of Oregon, as a general clean-up day, says the Pendleton Tribune. All school children, all women's organizations and all churches are invited to lend a helping hand in this worthy undertaking. On the above mentioned days all rubbish will be raked together and that portion which is not burned will be carted off on the following Monday.

LIVE JENS JENSEN.

Employee on Joseph Train is Jens Jensen, Except for Grafting.

The Barlow Bros' news agency has a man in its employ on the Joseph-La Grande train that meets every requirement of a regular "Jens Jensen," of funny picture type, except that this Jens Jensen is no grafter. He wears the visored cap, has the same stoop, uses the same brogue and except for the exception cited, is a Jens Jensen through and through. In his Jensen brogue he cries his wares to the passengers and his genial smiles oftentimes sell for his man article when other wise no sale would be recorded. He has been in this county for 21 years, but never seems to be able to acquire the American dialect.

But last St. Patrick's day Jens was an Irishman, an Irishman of which an Irishman can be proud of.

START FACTORY MONDAY.

Palmer Mill Box Factory Completed When Blower System is Done.

Another huge blower system is being installed by the George Palmer Lumber company. It is similar to the one that now conveys all the refuse from the planing mill to the boiler rooms, but this one will be operated from the box factory that is now being completed. A large fan will operate the system.

The box factory costing several thousands and held back from completion on account of delayed shipments of machinery, will be ready to start next Monday.
