LAST DAY OF CARNIVAL

Tonight will mark the close of La Grande's most successful spring festival, and never before in the history of the city has so much wholesome mirth and festivity been crowded into six days and nights with the objectionable features, that are so apt to characterize such occasions, so wholly absent.

The gentlemen connected with the C. W. Parker shows are all pleased with the volume of business done, and the treatment accorded them by La Grande and her citizens. The gentlemen of the local business men's association, under whose auspices the carnival was given, will realize more than enough to defray all the expenses incidental to the event, and the ladies of the park board will receive a substantial increase to the fund they have labored so unceasingly to establish, and, thanks to their joint efforts, the city of La Grande has amply demonstrated that it is capable of advertising itself, and of conducting such a carnival through the good will and public spirit of its citizens.

The C. W. Parker shows have been literally paragonized on their merits, and the constantly increasing attendance has been a substantial testimonial to the character of the attractions offered. They have fully sustained the reputation they brought to La Grande with them, and supplemented it with many commendable features that will leave a lasting impression. They are handsomely equipped, well operated, well managed, clean, meritorious, a credit to the profession of entertainment, and a testimonial to the sound business judgment of the gentlemen who direct the destinies of the business men's association.

This afternoon and evening the shows will all be open to the public, and there will be band concerts and free performances the same as usual. All of the attractions will remain open until a late hour tonight, for there is one feature about the Parker shows as unusual as it is commendable, and each attraction will not only remain intact until a late hour tonight, but, following the last act of the concluding performance, there will be none of the disagreeable sounds of hammers, and the profanity and yelling of department bosses so common with other shows, for the attractions are so constructed that they can be dismantled, the paraphernalia packed and the show train loaded within four hours.

It is evident that an unusually large crowd will be in town tonight, participating in the closing festivities, and the police will exercise more than the ordinary precaution to prevent any rough tactics on the part of over-boisterous carnavalesques who are liable to exhibit more life and freedom than would ordinarily prevail.

HAYWOOD PLEASES

Considering the various attractions that bid for public attention there was a splendid audience in the opera house last evening to hear William D. Haywood, former secretary of the Western Federation of Miners and E. J. Lewis, to hear Socialism discussed. Haywood's talk, even by the most conservative portion of the audience was well received, and knowing his position for the past few years he was not as bitter as many expected, and was a much better speaker than those who had not heard him before anticipated. His illustrations were to the point the leaders of the party who were active in securing him to visit this city were more than pleased.

Organization was the theme of Mr. Lewis' address aside from generalizing the tenets of Socialism.

LOCAL DOGS TAKE PRIZES

Local dogs belonging to M. K. Hall the dog fancier, walked off with the prizes in the Portland dog show this week. One animal, a Boston terrier, captured second place in a class replete with blooded exhibits from Denver, Seattle, Spokane and all of the big cities of the west. Another animal took third in two different classes, each filled with many entries from the largest cities.

The honors falling to the local owner are to be envied.

HELMET IS RENT IN TWO

Chief Rayburn must buy a new helmet or wear just a plain hat, thanks to Jack Gabhart, the invincible. This morning Rayburn found Jack in an intoxicated condition, or just plain drunk, as you please. He was also somewhat more or less disorderly, and naturally the chief thought a room in the city jail was the proper place for him. Disagreeing with the officer, Gabhart made a grab for anything that was loose and found a helmet, which he proceeded to demolish. Then he began on Rayburn, who, up to that time was trying to take his man without the use of undue violence. Seeing that he would be unable to do this he cracked his prisoner on the shoulder with a billy, and the blow glanced, landing on Jack's jaw. Another blow on the head was necessary to make a good man of him, and when this was delivered, Rayburn loaded him into the mail cart, used to transport mail from the depot to the post office, and hauled him to the jail. When you see the Chief without his helmet, that's how it happened.
