FINE WORK COMPLETED

After six months of successful work the Blue Mountain Association will hold its last meeting prior to the summer months this evening at the home of Joe Whitby, 1501 1-2 Sixth street.
During the life of the association, its object has been threefold: social, athletic and literary and music. From time to time the association has met at the respective homes of its members and held its weekly meetings, and aside from the social time, was drilled in parliamentary rules, elocution and music.
In the first of the season the association turned its attentions to baseball while later in the year its members devoted most of their time to literary work and debating. Aside from the usual outdoor athletics they took a course in gymnasium work and calisthenics.
