ENGINEER BUYS HOME

Engineer C. T. Darley, who has the supervision of work on the Meadowbrook project, has purchased through the C. J. Black agency, the George Stoddard property on O street formerly occupied by W. K. Davis. The sale price was $1650, and Mr. Darley has already commenced reshingling and repainting. The lawn will be improved, and considerable repairs of a general nature made. Mr. Darley will move his family here as soon as he conveniently can.
This is another proof of the favorable impression La Grande makes on strangers. Mr. Darley, an engineer of the first order, can look far enough in to the future to picture in his mind's eye something of what La Grande will be when water is turned loose on the soil, and to be on the ground floor, will own realty property in the city which will be the metropolis of all Eastern Oregon in short order.

COMES HERE TO LOCATE

Thomas Gooch and family of Marysville, Idaho, is here today looking over valley land with intentions of buying. He is also desirous of locating a business establishment of some sort here, in addition to buying a farm. He brought his family first and then commenced to look about for land and a suitable location.

Already many early birds among the joyous "Bills" are in the city, and one and all promise that next week's national convention of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks will be the greatest in the history of that organization of the princes of good fellows.
