The county court is to be commended for the activity in attempting to enforce the laws regarding the destruction of weeds, which if let run wild will destroy the productiveness of large acres of our best land.

The county court at its last session decided to make a change in the manner of handling the county poor, when the new county building on the Poor Farm is completed, and that no aid will be granted by the court unless those receiving aid reside at the county institution.

The next big county attraction will be the fair this fall. The plan will be entirely new for this section, but by referring to those localities where similar methods have proven successful there is every reason to believe that we as a county are entering upon an era where our county fairs will be looked forward to with pleasure and the purposes of such institutions realized.
