PLANT AT THE DALLES

After some delay another communication has been received from Robert Plant en route to Medford. It seems that he is having no end of trouble and any one with less nerve would give up the trip in despair. But not so with Plant, he is sticking to it and will reach there if it is possible. Here is the letter:

The Dalles, 8-24-'00.

Kinsley & Coger:

I suppose you think that we are lost but we have been having a bad time of it. We laid over three days in Ione for repairs. We got on the wrong road and had to ship from Biggs to The Dalles. We got here today.

FISH ON DISPLAY

SEATTLE, Aug. 25.—In order to show the Atlantic seaboard what the Pacific produces in the way of sea-food, the Pacific fishing industries will serve every variety of known fish product, cooked in most palatable style, during the entire New England week beginning September 3. The fish barbecue will be free to all, and cod, mackerel, salmon, halibut, smelt and flounder, will be doled out under the watchful eye of experienced chefs.

The Bering Cod Fishing company of Anacortes first broached the plan of "educating" the insular easterner, and without exception all the fishing firms and corporations approached have agreed to help carry out the big fish feast.

New England society officials when told of the plan, said they doubted if the Pacific coast sea-food could make much impression on a New England man, but that they were "willing to be shown." So the gauntlet was thrown and accepted, and New England week will see the greatest display of fried, fricaseed, boiled, baked, planked, and stewed denizens of the Pacific deep that could be imagined by the most enthusiastic piscatorial epicure.

OWNERS FOR SUIT CASES

Two men went into the police station this morning and after giving a thorough description of the two suit cases, which were found yesterday morning by two boys and brought to the recorder's office, was given the property. The men claimed that they had been indulging too freely in "near beer" and that they placed there suit cases at the place where they were found for safe keeping and went away. When they sobered up they had forgotten where they put them. Hearing that a couple of suit cases were at the police station awaiting the owner they promptly claimed them. They gave their residence as Pendleton.

CHANGE IN GROUNDS

To one whose acquaintance with the Spokane Interstate Fair grounds is limited to the annual visit during the holding of the fair, the changes are so marked this year that it is necessary to stop occasionally and get one's bearing to be sure that one is looking at the same sections that have been familiar for years.

Every part of the grounds shows the effects of the money that has been spent since last year's fair in handsome improvements.

Race track and inclosed field, in which are performed all the variety acts, grand stand and basement of grand stand, in which this year is a hall for the accommodation of automobiles, exhibit buildings and driveways, all have been altered and improved.

The center field in front of the grand stand, whereon was given last year the "Pain Fireworks," the "Eruption of Vesuvius," and whereon this year will be seen the tremendous pyrotechnic spectacle of the Gregory Fireworks company, "The Siege of Jericho," nightly, has been levelled at great expense to make the most perfect and uninterrupted view of the vast drama.

The space between the rear of the grand stand and the exhibition buildings, which last year was somewhat uneven under foot has been carefully graded and now makes a perfect walking or driving ground. Eighteen new flagpoles, resplendent in bright gilt, now decorate the fruit and grain building.

Instead of the board fence that has always greeted the eye of the approaching visitor on the south side, there has been erected this year a neat and sightly wire fence. The ramshackle wooden shacks that faced the old board fence for quite a distance west of the main entrance have been torn down, a walk laid over the space occupied by the shacks, and room is given for short exhibits.
