

Mothers, the Time Has Come to Get Your Boys' School Suits

Single or double breasted knicker suits for the older boys; sailor and Russian styles for the little fellows.

If you get an XTRAGOOD suit, you get one that is durable. It will outwear most any other make. It will look well longer. It will be economical.

Boys in school are hard on their trousers. That's why you should get XTRAGOOD. All XTRAGOOD trousers are lined throughout.

Boys can't rip XTRAGOOD trousers. The seat seams are re-inforced by tape and sewed three times. All seams are "overcast" to prevent raveling.

These trousers also have patent waist bands. An elastic device takes the strain from the cloth and makes it impossible for the garment to rip or tear.

These clothes, the kind we sell, are best suited for your boy. Patterns are attractive and there is all the style you want. Made for us by Ederheimer, Stein & Co., the leading boys' house.

BIG FAIR AT SPOKANE

SPOKANE, Wash. Sept. 1.—(Special)—The National Apple Show Bulletin, issued in connection with the second competitive exhibition, open to the world, in Spokane, November 15 to 20, when $25,000 in cash prizes and premiums will be awarded in 20 classes, will say in its September number that Oregon sent the first consignment of commercial apples to China. The full text of the article, prepared by Ren H. Rice, secretary-manager of the show, follows:

"It is not generally known that the first commercial shipment of apples to China was made from Grant's Pass, Oregon. Hon. Henry B. Miller was appointed consul general to China and stationed at Neuchwang, during the early part of the Boxer rebellion. Owing to the disturbed condition of the country he did not proceed immediately to his post of duty, but spent a number of months upon special assignments and a large part of the time in the southern provinces. At the close of the Boxer war he proceeded to Neuchwang and took up his duties.

"Consul Miller and his brother Frank J. Miller, were both interested in an apple orchard at Grant's Pass, and as a result of Henry Miller's travels it occurred to them that there ought to be a market in China for Oregon apples if they could be properly handled.

"A test shipment was made and particular attention was paid to the manner in which the different varieties stood the test of travel and climate. One hundred boxes of all the standard varieties, with the day of picking, packing and shipping noted, were shipped direct to Shanghai.

"In packing, the precaution was taken to leave the apples under the trees until the following day. They were then taken in upon a large straw floor and graded by hand. Every box was shipped within two weeks of picking and no apples picked later than the last of September.

"Contrary to the prevailing opinion among growers, the Ben Davis stood the test of shipment and climatic conditions better than any other variety and it was proved conclusively that it should be picked before maturity to obtain best results.

"The Miller brothers continued to supply apples to the China trade for from seven to eight years after the first consignment, with profit and satisfaction.

HEAR CASES OVER WATER

Attorneys C. E. Cochran, of the firm of Cochran & Cochran, and J. H. Crawford are in Cove today, where they will examine the applications of the people applying for water rights which are open for examination today at the Cove. In all such cases as a rule there are a few who claim more water than they are legally entitled to and it is the object of Messrs Crawford and Cochran to examine these in the interests of their respective clients and see that no man receives what rightfully belongs to their clients. When they are all examined and they find the ones who are claiming more than what belongs to them they will ask the applicant to relinquish what is not his and then if he does not they will start litigation proceedings.

The applications will be open for examination from August 27 until September 6. Mr. Saxton of the Water Board of Oregon is in attendance, and will hear all of the complaints. Messrs Cochran and Crawford went across the valley in an automobile, and will return today.

BONDSMEN WITHDRAW

Ralph Atkinson's bondsmen, who until last evening were a guarantee to the extent of $900 that Atkinson would appear in the circuit court to carry on his case from appeal in the lower court, where he was found guilty of bootlegging, suddenly withdrew their names last night. At a late hour in the evening Atkinson found two other men to carry the guarantee, though they have requested that their identity not be made known. J. H. Russell and Charles Disqua were the former bondsmen, and asked to be released as soon as rumors to the effect that Atkinson was going to leave the city reached their ears. The change of bondsmen was made last evening before Justice of the Peace Stewart.
