GRAND OPERA STARS UNABLE TO FIND PLACES

Italian operatic stars have roamed the streets since early morning, trying in vain to find quarters in which to house themselves in until tonight, when the International Opera Company, of which they are members, sing at the Steward, commencing at 9:15. The notables, with the understudies and orchestra membership, was unable to locate the information bureau rooms, and although a great portion of them had been assigned rooms, it was impossible to guide all of them to their quarters. The city is filled with Italians of national fame. Among the prominent singers which hold the attention of the musical world and who by the way had about as much trouble to find accommodations as the understudies, were Mme. Therry, Mme. Bertossi, Mme. Norelli, Mme. Strauss, Mme. Donner, Mme. Zarad, Mme. Williams, Signor Bari, Columbini, Samelloff, Arcangeli, Oteri, Zarad, Frascogna, Cervi, Guiline, Kaplan and others. The company is up to press notices. There are an even 124 in the troupe, and the greater portion of them have not mastered the English language as yet. Though somewhat discouraged over their failure to secure hotel accommodations they have made the best of it and little complaint is heard from their guardians and interpreters. The numbers which the company sings tonight is the overture to Barber of Siviglia, by Rossini, the great double bill of Cavalleria Rusticana, and the second act of Lucia de Lammermoor, the last number introducing the famous sextette from Lucia with Mme. Norelli, Williams and others in the title roles.
