AROUND THE EXHIBITS AT THE EXPOSITION

IMPRESSIONS OF MRS. C. A. THOMASON IN GOING THE ROUNDS OF THE EXHIBIT BOOTHS.

Now that the day has arrived when it can be said that the coming mid-night hour is to usher out the first Union county exposition—an exposition which by the common verdict of the visitors of more than state wide experience in such affairs—is one of the best in every respect ever held in Oregon—a general birds-eye view of the superbly arranged buildings is in order and is hereby set forth to aid the memory of those who have enjoyed the successful event and for the information of those who have not been so fortunate as to have a part in it.

A hooping, whirling merry-go-round extended a noisy greeting to the great throngs of visitors as they approached the pavilion by either the Fair or the Washington street routes. Those who were able to pass this attraction without taking a "twenty-five times around the world" entered the front door where a bewildering vision of gaily waiving banners and brightly decorated booths burst upon their gaze.

The first booth to the right of the door was that of the La Grande Milling company with its long racks of flour and breakfast food sacks artistically decorated with loaves, doughnuts, and other finished products of the farms. Adjoining this booth were those of the Imbler, Union, Elgin and Island City mills with correspondingly appropriate displays, each setting forth its own brand of flour which are the best grades obtainable in Eastern Oregon.

The artistic and impressive displays of the Wadham & Kerr company of Portland, came next and told of the ability of that firm to furnish groceries and fruits to all merchants who might order.

Passing on a step the crowds come in front of F. L. Lilly's cozy little kitchen showing the merits of the Majestic range. In the room also were completely set tea tables and other kitchen and dining room equipments.

Everything from a tiny baby shoe up was next shown in the display of Smith & Green in their hosiery and footwear booth. L. C. Smith in the adjoining nook had a fine Ford motor car which told the story of the advance of that luxurious conveyance.

Then seated in a warm little room with a cheerful fire blazing all the time the man advertising the Arnold Economy damper sat in comfort.

"We make clothes for men" was in the next booth shown both in word and example by Andrews & Berry. On the front of the booth in confetti letters were the words and on the dummies in the booth were the elegant examples.

With a room full of pianos, graphophones and musicians to make them go, the Newlin Book & Stationary company set forth its wares. The wide scope covered by the M & M. company was next heralded by a liberal space filled with every equipment for an up-to-date farm. A unique chain of bridle bits crossed the front of the booth.

Pendleton academy, grateful to the local firms for the use of tables and cabinets, showed forth the beauties of a home regulated by wives trained under an instructor in domestic science. In another section of the booth relics of the new junior college were displayed. The Blue Mountain Creamery with its tempting heaps of yellow butter and its other displays was next along the line.

The Fair store's booth was fair in every respect. The models showing the latest fashions, and also the keepers of the booth were fair and many a lady said "I'm going there sometime." The next and last booth was that of W. H. Bohnenkamp demonstrating that perfect order and fine furnishings may be had by every housekeeper.

In swinging around the circle and starting from the entrance of the pavilion back toward the front door the first booth was that of the Standard Bird company of Seattle. The artistic exhibit of the Newlin Drug company was next in order.

When the crowds passed on one station they were impressed with the excellent display of woolen blankets made in the park booth by the Pendleton Woolen mills and were undoubtedly tempted to purchase a chance at the blanket presented to the park by the mills.

The Golden Rule department store occupied the next space with a fine display of their wide line of goods carried. Henry & Carr with an elegant display of furniture was next in order and did their business credit by their excellent booth.

Bay & Zweifel's plumbing shop booth in the next space made the visitors self conscious on account of its neat and clean appearance. The Oregon Educational exhibit next door was suggestive of the theme it represented.

Passing by the sauce mill, the crowds were greeted with a hearty "Hello Bill, come in" from the front of the Elks booth. The Sugar company came next with illustrations of every process of sugar making from the green beet to the finished product.

Frank Harris with his art store, came next with a beautiful combination of works of art. The city schools with banners and full illustrations of the work done by pupils and students of the high school occupied the next booth.

A second booth of the M. & M. company in which a gasoline engine and a stationary pump were installed and at work was the next attraction. The booth of E. C. Davis illustrating his marble works ended the long row and left the wandering crowds at the door ready to turn again to view the fruit, art, historic and general exhibit in the pavilion.

Upon entering the door of the general display pavilion the first booth was the hospitable grange corner where pioneers were cordially invited to stop and rest and where all were asked to register. Here, mid scenes of farm, orchard and garden wealth, comfort was found by all.

May Park, with the attractive name in the richest of colors of real ripe corn was next in line with its live fruit trees, growing corn and blossoming flowers. Close by this display was the pioneer relics which brought forth hundreds of rich tales of historic lore from the old settlers who chanted to linger for awhile.

The Moorehouse display of Indian curios covered the entire end of the rink and was a source of never ending wonder. The display of grains and grasses and illustrations of the methods of scientific study of the possibilities of the soil of the valley was made by the Eastern Oregon Experimental station located at Union.

A corner was beautifully decorated with the pen and ink sketches made by E. Frances and Evangeline Hume. In the central part of the room near the front door Elgin had her superb display of "Without Irrigation" fruits and vegetables. Farther toward the rear came similar displays made by Imbler, Island City, Medical Springs and a number of enterprising individuals.

As could be heard expressed by hundreds of visitors at the exposition, the arrangements of the separate parts of the building was perfect, in that it separated the various attractions, preventing the ever restless portions of the crowd who did not care for the intellectual features of the program.

The speakers and musicians had a separate tent, where quiet reigned at all times. Here the most instructive conferences and the most inspiring addresses and music were enjoyed by thousands.

On the opposite side of the skating rink which was used as a pavilion for fruits arts and curios, was the dancing platform where the disciples of Terpsicore tripped "the light fantastic toe." Along the extended alley east of the booths the live stock exhibits were housed. The crowds walking down the alley, saw first the horses, then they came to the poultry, and last of all, after turning the corner of Greenwood street, were led by the stalls of the cattle and hogs. For adding spice to the live stock show a number of special displays were made, such as the band of Shetland ponies by Levy of Union.

A STEADY DRAIN.

Sick Kidneys Weaken the Whole Body

—Make You Ill, Languid

And Depressed.

Sick kidneys weaken the body through the continual drainage of life-giving albumen from the blood into the urine, and the substitution of poisonous uric acid that goes broadcast through the system, sowing the seeds of disease. Loss of albumen causes weakness, languor, depression. Uric poisoning causes rheumatic pain, nervousness, nausea, cricks in the back, gravel and kidney stones. The proper treatment is a kidney treatment, and the best remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is good proof in the following testimonial:

James M. Johnson, Main st., Union, Ore., says: "I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills, as I know they are a reliable remedy for kidney complaint. Constant standing brought on my kidney trouble and I suffered intensely. A customer first recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to me, saying that they had been the means of saving his life. I was induced to try them and in a short time, I was convinced that they lived up to representations. I have used Doan's Kidney Pills on several occasions since then and have always received prompt relief."
