Here's a timely warning for Saturday. Put all of your portable property under lock and key. Double bar your out buildings, if you happen to have any. Put chains on your gates. Lock all doors securely. Then hire a squad of private cops, armed with shot guns, to sit up all night and guard your property. Having done all this and take all other little precautions that you may deem necessary, you may retire to slumber and peaceful dreams, confident that all of your belongings are safe.

Saturday night is Hallowe'en when ghosts, witches, hobgoblins, and other assorted hants return to earth and play strange pranks. As the festival falls on Sunday this year, and as many specters are strict observers of the Sabbath, it may be confidently expected that the visitation will begin tonight. In any event it wisest to prepare for the emergency, least some able bodded ghost or husky hobgoblin happen along and carry off everything that is left loose.

Preparations have been made for a number of ghost and soot parties and from 8 o'clock until midnight the resident section of the city will be filled with white fluttering figures. For four hours the young people will give their time and ingenuity to all sorts of pranks and pleasures. Owing to the impossibility of keeping a separate day for each saint, the Roman Catholic church, centuries ago, set aside November 1st, as the day upon which the lives and deeds of all the saints could be commemorated.

The hallowed eve, which time has abbreviated and changed to Hallowe'en was the name of the even or vigil of All Saints. From a religious observation the occasion has come to be an observance for purely secular entertainment and according to old legends it is the one night in all the year when elves and farries silently and invisibly mingle with the people on the earth.

Social life in La Grande is becoming strenuous. More nights in the week will soon become an absolute necessity, and occasionally there is a shortage of afternoons.

Farmers generally would hail a good soaking rain with delight. The ground in many places is too dry to plow. Earlier in the season considerable fall grain was sown.

While very little is being said about it, a tour of the city will demonstrate that considerable building is now under way. A number of new residences are being constructed.

The permanency of our city is reflected in the prices obtained for Adams avenue property. $6,000 per lot was a vision a few years ago, now an actual reality.

When the eastern portion of Adams avenue is macadamized, that is going to be one of the most desirable residence sections of the city.

Over From Baker City.
 George B. Small, one of the owners of the Baker City Democrat, was in the city this afternoon, having made the run from Baker to La Grande in an automobile, with Judge Henry and other friends. The party reached this city only a few moments ahead of the heavy rain storm which visited this section this afternoon. George is the same light hearted, joyous chap that he always is, which accounts for the glad welcome that his friends always have for him.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy Never Known To Fail.

"I have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy since it was first introduced to the public in 1872 and have never found one instance where a cure was not speedily effected by its use. I have been a commercial traveler for eighteen years, and never start out on a trip without this, my faithful friend," says H. S. Nichols of Oakland, Ind., Ter. For sale by all good dealers.
