Appendicitis and Impaction

The question is often asked, "Does the appendix have a function, or is it a mere remnant without function?" The Osteopath believes that the appendix has a function, for the reason that it has glands and motions, the same as the adjoining portion of the intestine. He believes that the Creator knew more that some of the modern surgeons who claim the appendix to be without use to the body.

The appendix in health is able to empty itself and carry on its work of secreting a digestive juice; but as soon as its motion becomes sluggish or stopped it becomes impacted, or obstructed with fecal matter which results in acute inflammation, frequently followed by formation of pus. This is appendicitis.

What can Osteopathy do? If called during the acute attack, before pus has formed, our practitioners are usually able to prevent pus formation by correcting this pressure on the motor nerves to the appendix, thus restoring function and enabling the appendix to empty itself. In case where the adjoining parts of the intestine is also impacted, we use an enema of olive oil with the colon tube to flush out the bowel and assist in emptying the intestine. This, with absolute rest in bed, starvation diet for a few days and careful nursing, will cure about ninety-five per cent of all cases of acute appendicitis if the treatment is taken before pus has formed. In cases where pus has formed in quantity before calling the Osteopath, it may require an operation to drain the pus.

In recurring, or chronic appendicitis, if the Osteopath is called between the acute attacks, his treatment to correct the pressure which causes the sluggish action of the appendix, and it will usually result in formed adhesions, or stricture bands, of the intestines.

Is it not better thus to remove the cause of the trouble than to remove the appendix?—Osteopathic Health.

to A. A. Christholm of Treadwell N. Y., now... His reason is well worth reading: "For along time I suffered from indigestion, torpid liver, constipation nervousness and general debility," he writes. "I couldn't sleep, had no appetite, nor ambition, grew weaker every day in spite of all medical treatment. Then used Electric Bitters. Twelve bottles restored all my old time health and vigor. Now I can attend to business every day. It is a wonderful medicine. Infallible for Stomach, Liver, Kidneys, Blood and Nerves. 50c at the Newlin Drug Company.

out afterwards that his team balked. Bought without first trying them.

Was he more foolish than the man who paid the last dollar on the price of a tract of land without first looking up the title?

The search that he afterwards made showed a shaky and defective title—full of balky deeds, conveyances that do not convey—a complete break in the chain.

We will furnish the abstract either before or after you buy the land.
