COLD SNAP REALLY EASY

SEVENTEEN ABOVE ZERO IS REGISTRATION LAST NIGHT.

Extreme Cutting Wind More to Blame Than the Temperature.

Last night's cold snap was more imaginary than real. Due to a stiff cold wind that was blowing all night, a night that was more disagreeably cold than any that we have had this winter resulted, but the government thermometer registered only 17 above zero, which is as far from being as low as has been recorded already this season.

However it is evident that the cold snap is growing worse for the night previous the same instrument registered 24 above. Water pipes were frozen in some instances last evening due to a lack of precaution.

How about plates? If you stop to think you will say that I have never asked for plate work for I have not had time to take care of any more than would naturally come to the office. However, I have an experienced laboratory man now to assist me and am rather anxious to show you what we can do toward fitting plates for you. Of course you know that we will not turn out anything but the best and that at a reasonable price. We simply guarantee to make the best plates made and make them to fit.

Very truly yours,
J. E. STEVENSON, M. D.
