After a short wedding tour taking them to Vancouver and other points near Portland they will come to La Grande to live. The Oregonian says of their marriage:

"L. F. Massee of Hood River, threw Clerk's Foley of the Ramapo into a fit of excitement when he strolled into the lobby just after the noon hour and stated that he would like to have baggage of Miss Nellie Graham, of Elgin, placed in his room. While Mr. Foley was stuttering about an excuse for declining, he observed Rev. Mr. Loukes just making his exit from the building, and made the transfer. The wedding of these young people is said to be the culmination of a romance of years standing.
