Hall on the "Life of Christ" and he did not have more than two dozen people to hear him. His entertainment was instructive, it was uplifting and worthy of the support of everyone. The show we speak of was a production full of laughter foolishness and good nature. While it received applause in quantity and was the talk of the town, Bishop Scaddings' lecture was scarcely mentioned next day following its delir FOT.

Yet the bishop had put more work on his lecture, studied harder, consulted more authoritles than most of the Shakesperian actors to say nothing of the burleaque shows such as the one that delighted two-thirds of Baker's population.

The lesson drawn from this is very plain: People will be entertained and amused rather than listen attentivelly to a dcep and usarned talker handle a subject. There is no use to criticise or rail or rant about this condition of affairs, it exists and what are you going to do abuot it?

Some newspaper told of Tafus visit to the coast and in mentioning his appearance, his addresses and the reception accorded him offered the last trip of Roosevelt in comparison, drawing the conclusion that Roosevelt was an entertainer wh!'c Taft was more of the nature of a jurist. And the conclusion drawn was that the people followed Roosevelt and warmed up to him because he was an entertainer while Taft's reception was almost chilly.

This is but another illustration of the desire for entertainments. Another example: The local minister works hard on his sermons, reads his bible in a studious manner. He faces a mere handful of faithfu! churchgoers on Sunday morning and wonders why people do not attend Then a slang dispensing church. bishop happens in calling himself an evangelist. He raves and roars and swears; talks on delicate subjects, and holds meetings for men only and for women only. He may carry a singer. What is the result? People turn out by thousands; they gross receipts at the office here for applaud him, dine him and almost freight were $3600; the gross refall at his feet and worship him. celpts for January, 1910 were $24,938 important transfers of property have been made, notably the recent pur chase of 520 acres by P. C. Lavey of Portland at a cost of $65,000, says a Newberg, Ore., dispatch. This body of land is three miles from the city in the Chehalem Valley district and joins another recently platted tract of 500 acres. Mr. Lavey has his engineer on the ground making surveys for laying out all this area into orchard lots for apples and other fruit. intending to plant it this spring with fruit trees and English walnuts. Planning to increase the falling lobster supply, the United States Fisheries Department will trans plant a carload in the waters c Yaquina Bay. Whether the lo's sters will thrive there is not known but it is though conditions are right for them. Lobsters demand a rocky bottom, without silt deposited by the nearby rivers, which is the case at Yaquina. This is the reason assigned for the failures of experiments made heretofore in trying to grow logsters in Pacific waters. Senator Bourne has been agitating the mat- as Dr. Cook is keeping mighty quiet ter and has secured the promise of Fish Commissioner Bowers to make the experiment at Yaquina.

Our anti-meat strike is not without precedent. In Germany several years ago a similar movement was successful in bringing about a reduction of prices. It is a new thing in this country, however. Just what result the prevailing high prices of necessities will have on future legislation is a problem that is being given careful consideration not only by politicians but financiers. Socialism has been dormant in this

As an index to the unusual growth of business in and around Vale during the past year, these figures from the books of the Oregon Short Line railroad branch office here are significant. During January, 1909, the This is another form of entertain- an increase of more than 1000 per Oregon's grand old man on his 87th 🌩 birthday, March 27 at Portland. As Attorney General in Grant's cabinet and prominent in the nation's history throughout his life, Judge Williams commands the respect and affection of all Oregonians and the most prominent people of the city are proud to show him honor.

With feeding grounds covered with snow for the longest period in 20 years, bobcats, coyotes and lynx have been numerous in the country contigious to Bristol, Wash., this winter. Sunday three coyotes blocked the Johnson Roard, one mile north of Bristol, only moving to the sides of the road when a horseman passed and when shot at merely keeping ut of gunshot range.

It has become such a safe precedent that whenever the foreman of a printing office calls for a few lines to fill a certain space in the closing of the forms for the news editors to simply say that Dr. Cook has been seen in a certain European city, id entified by an American tourist. There is little danger of being caught these days.

A new Grand Army post will be mustered in at Montavilla next Thursday. The new post will be known as McKinley post No. 45, and will be mustered in by Commander J. R. Shaw, Department of Oregon G. A. R., assisted by members of his official staff. O. H. Prink is commander-elect of the new post which starts off with 20 charter members.

The city council of Bozeman, Montana, makes an annual appropriation for the purchase of flowers and their distributing through the trains that pass through the city. Every passenger gets a flower at Bozeman, and the city pays for it. They have their parks and their flower houses. They make it a point to raise flowers enough to keep up the supply all the year, and the rallway company co-operates to the extent of making the distributions.
