The good roads movement is holding hold of this county, the to the remarks of Walter Pierce night that the people should assist in holding up the hands of the County Court in their campaign for better permanent roads plainly designated the drift of public sentiment.

Some conception of the lumber industry may be gleaned from the address made last evening at the banquet, wherein W. Y. Stoddard stated that 1000 men were employed the year around, to whom were paid $60,000 per month and that the present supply was sufficient to keep the mills going for the next thirty or forty years.

Pendleton and Baker City schools each had appropriate Lincoln Day exercises. It was impossible for La Grande to observe this great day because we have no assembly room in which general exercises could be held.

What do you think of William Miller's "$100,000 Fund?" That could be raised in this vicinity and if raised would attract more projects than the most optimistic would predict, and out of the many we would land some that would add to our payrolls.

This is the age of irrigation. Nearly every speaker last evening looked forward to the time when irrigation ditches would be covering the Grande Ronde valley and then we will see the large holdings fall into the hands of the many.

All Union county clasped hands around the banquet tables last evening, which action speaks for a greater Union county. In unity there is strength.

We noticed several robins in our yard today and we wonder whether birds are not like people and get a little off once in a while.
