SCENE FROM THE 3RD ACT OF CHARLES B. HANFORD'S PRODUCTION OF THE AMERICAN LORD

HANFORD HERE TOMORROW NIGHT IN "AMERICAN LORD"

Hanford Tomorrow Night
Something far and above the average play offering is promised the patrons of the Steward tomorrow night, when the "American Lord," a four-act comedy by George Broadhurst and Charles T. Dazey, is to be presented by Charles B. Hanford and his company of players.
"The American Lord" in the case is John Breuster, and the action of the piece takes the audience from Breuster's home in North Dakota to his magnificent estate in England. Breuster is a big, bubbling Westerner with an abiding love for his home country and a sort of contempt for the countries that lie across the water, a dislike that has its root in his observation of certain Englishmen whom he knew on the ranches of the West. While he is thinking of accepting a nomination for congress that is about to be offered him, he receives word from English solicitors that he, being a lineal descendant of Lord Breuster, has fallen heir to the title and the great estate. Breuster has little patience with titles, but he decides to go over and claim his own. Then the fun commences.

New Church Dedicated Sunday
The new $20,000 Christian Church will be dedicated next Sunday. This is the official announcement made this morning by Rev. N. H. Brooks, the minister in charge. The dedicatory exercises will be under the direction of Evangelist Charles Reign Scoville of Chicago, and recognized as one of the greatest evangelists in the country. Following the dedication of the church, Scoville and his corps of workers will hold a series of revival meetings.

While the church is not entirely completed, either on the outside or inside, the work will be rushed with all possible speed this week and it will be ready for the dedication.—Pendleton E. O.
