DIES IN THE EAST.

H. C. Stuart at one time living here, passes away.

News was received here yesterday of the death in Marrison, Ill., Sunday morning of H. C. Stuart at one time a resident of this city. He was a son in law to H. S. Masse of this city. Two years ago Mr. and Mrs. Stuart lived in La Grande, Mr. Stuart having a class of music students. Later he moved to Walla Walla, and when, about a year ago, he was taken ill they sought different climes but all to no avail. Interment will be made at Marrison.

UNION WINS HANDILY

Show steady and cool dispositions and hammer out victory

By keeping their noses to the grindstone and playing more level-headed ball at all times than their adversaries, the Union high school team whipped it to the La Grande High last Saturday to the tune of 16 to 6. The visitors kept up a steady hammering away showing neither rattle nor excitement and when at times the home aggregation went to pieces, the Unionites made the best of it. The struggle was witnessed by a very few and was played under disagreeable weather conditions. This was the opening game and the locals hope, with concerted practice, to get back their real calibre. They have a heavy schedule, and are possessed with more baseball talent than they exhibited Saturday.

I. O. O. F. ELECTS DELEGATES

Four men chosen to represent La Grande lodge at Eugene

At the meeting of the I. O. O. F. last Saturday night four delegates were elected to represent the local order at the meeting of the Grand Lodge which will be held at Eugene in May. There are Geo. Grout, G. E. Fowler, J. A. Arbuckle and Ira. R. Snook.

Subsoil Very Damp

In an hour and a half Saturday, Irving Blatt, the Seattle man who has purchased land on the Sandridge and has come here to live, with the assistance of Geo. L. Clever managed to get about six feet of water on the highest point on the Sandridge farm. They dug down about 18 feet and by that time had six feet of water in the hole. This is characteristic of the Sandridge soil however.

EATON INVESTS

Former Union capitalist invests heavily in Portland realty

The most important acreage transaction of the week was the sale of 22.7 acres adjoining Woodstock on the south. This property was purchased by Dr. A. H. Eaton a wealthy resident of Union, Oregon, who paid $30,000 for it. It is unimproved and will be held by the purchaser as an investment. The deal was negotiated through the Western Oregon Trust Company, says the Portland Journal.

Although a resident of Eastern Oregon, Dr. Eaton is well known in this part of the state. He will be remembered as the donor of Eaton Hall to the Willamette University. He is greatly interested in the educational institutions of Oregon and was influenced in the purchase of the radiant acreage because of its being near the site selected for the Reed Institute.

CREAM WITHOUT ICE.

New machine will be ready for use in the near future.

The Blue Mountain Creamery company awaits the arrival of a machine recently purchased which freezes ice cream without ice.

It is one of the new affairs of its kind, and will be hitched up to the ice making plant as soon as it is installed in the creamery building in rooms already prepared for it, and the cream is frozen with the same process that the ice is made. It works on the plan of a sausage grinder, the cream being poured in from a tank and come out of the other end as ice cream at a rate of 60 to 80 gallons per hour.

O. A. C. ITEMS.

The Oregon Agricultural College baseball team opened the season with two games with the Whitman College team. The Whitman boys took the first contest by a score of 4 to 3 and the Oregon team returned the favor the following day by defeating the Washingtonians by a score of 3 to 0. Fielder Jones, the famous coach, directed the Agricultural College team from the bench during the second game.

Work was commenced on the $1500 band stand which will be erected at the Oregon Agricultural College by the alumni and the present senior and sophomore classes. The stand design and will be constructed almost entirely of concrete. Under the stand will be a large room for band practice. The band will give frequent open air concerts.

"The Miracle of the Roses," an opera given by the girls chorus of the Oregon Agricultural College under the direction of Genevieve Baum-Gaskine of the school of music was very well received by a large audience of college and town people. The summer session at the Oregon Agricultural College promises to have a large attendance. Already a large number of inquiries have already been received from prospective students and especially from the teachers.
