A Ranchman's Wooling at Isis.

Here is offered a solution of the wedding problem which will perhaps help others in a similar dilemma. The widow won't marry him until he has disposed of his four single daughters and proposes kicking the lovers off the place to make them elope. The scheme works to perfection and he gets the widow, while the girls get the fellows they want. This is all worked out humorously and brings many a laugh before it finishes.

Extending Building walls.

Work is well under way at the Bohnenkamp building to make the structure a full three story building. The brick walls in the rear are going up rapidly.

E. G. ADCOOK WEDS LAST EVENINGBRIDE AND GROOM LEAVE IMMEDIATELY ON TRIP.

Mrs. Holmes a Well Known and Popular Lady—Will Live Here

E. G. Adcock, senior member of the firm of Adcock & Fritts, furniture dealers, was married at nine o'clock last evening to Mrs. Maude Holmes at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Hagans, 1418 Monroe Avenue. Rev. Gray was the officiating minister.

Immediately after the wedding the couple left for Portland where Mr. Adcock will appear as a witness in the Scriber trial and after a short wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Adcock will be at home in this city. The bride was formerly the hair dresser in the Mrs. Smith millinery store, and during her stay in La Grande has made many warm friends. Mr. Adcock is one of La Grande's pioneer and enterprising business men.

SERIOUS CHARGE

idence here have lived an exemplary life. I have known the family which lived across the way but a short time but I am friendly with all my neighbors and soon become friendly with them."

That there can be no charge of statutory nature brought against Sanders is certain. The child was given surgical examination today and the physician's report will not incriminate Sanders. The only indication of a base motive for the child's presence in the house with the old man at night is the child's own statement that she was forced to occupy the same bed as Sanders. This feature may of course been the outcome of the mother's deplorable disposition to be good to the old man, and the man's own desire to have company.

Late this evening no formal charge had been lodged against the prisoner and his friends are affirming that there is no ground as crime motive is missing.

Stern lessons are, however, being taught to both parties and it is very doubtful if either will ever disregard decency and propriety to such unpardonable degrees again.

Men who buy Hart Schaffner & Marx clothes are well dressed, not only when the clothes are new, but after they are old. Ask the Peoples Store; they will be glad to show you.

There are lots of people looking at the stores now, and trying to figure out the comet. Star Brand shoes are very interesting, as well, and every pair guaranteed. The Golden Rule company.
