Culture Can't Be Forced Through Thick Skin Of Average American.

Commissioners on Recent Tour of United States.

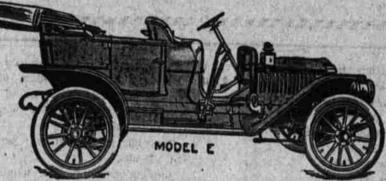

F CULTURE COULD BE ATTACHED TO THE POINT OF A JAVELIN YOU COULDN'T FORCE IT THROUGH THE PACHY-DERMATOUS HIDE, OR, TO BE CLEARER, THE THICK HIDE, OF THE AVERAGE AMERICAN.

In our tour of the United States when the Japanese commissioners were here we visited practically every large city in the country, and in only three places-Washington, Indianapolis and St. Louiswere the distinguished Japanese shown ANYTHING THAT RE-SEMBLED POLITENESS. In those cities alone did those who sat at the banquet table reveal gentlemanly instincts. In most of the other cities-Philadelphia in particular-we encountered such BOORISHNESS and UTTER LACK OF BREEDING that I was surprised and disgusted.

The causes for this lack of culture are varied. Primarily IT GOES BACK TO OUR HOMES. In many American homes children are NOT TAUGHT TO PAY RESPECTFUL ATTEN-Washington Ave. Visiting brothers TION WHEN OTHERS ARE SPEAKING. And if they fail to learn that cardinal precept of culture when they are young it is IM-POSSIBLE TO PUNCH IT THROUGH THEIR THICK SKINS WHEN THEY GROW OLD.
